Local Calls

"Hello."

"Hi, what are you doing?"

"I was just trying to decide what to wear to school tomorrow. I'm so excited for school to start! It's kind of sad to see summer vacation come to an end, but so much is going to happen this year."

"I'm excited, too; I just dread the thought- of having to be in class by 7:30 every morning. That's so early!"

"Don't worry about it being early.

The construction noise will keep us awake no matter how tired we are."

"I guess you're right. I hadn't really thought about the construction that much. I bet the school will be a mess this year with all of that stuff going on. I heard that they've been doing a lot to the old building, in addition to new part that they're adding."

"I guess we'll see what all they've done already when we go to school tomorrow. When I think of the new classrooms and direct hallway to the gym that they're adding, I think I can put up with the inconveniences for a year."

"Yes, I can, too. I can't wait to see the new library and auditorium. The old auditorium is being converted into a library while an auditorium is being put into the addition."

"That all sounds pretty neat. Have you heard anything else new about school this year?"

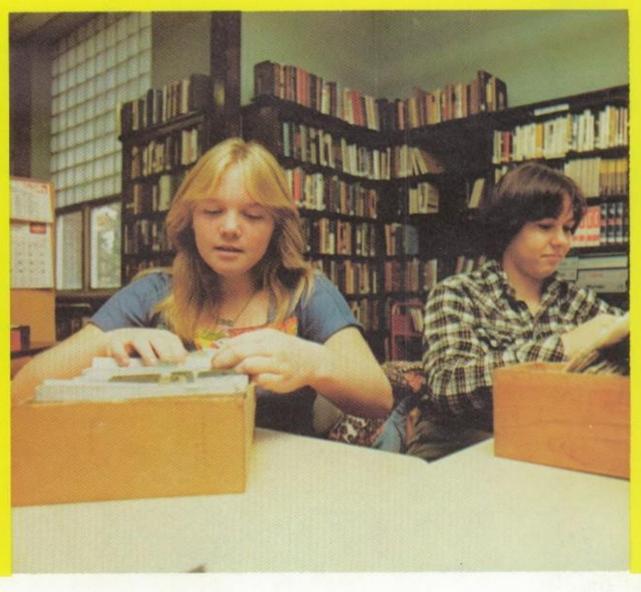

"My brother said that he heard about a scramble system that they're going to use in the cafeteria. I guess that now you get to pick from certain items to make up your lunch tray."

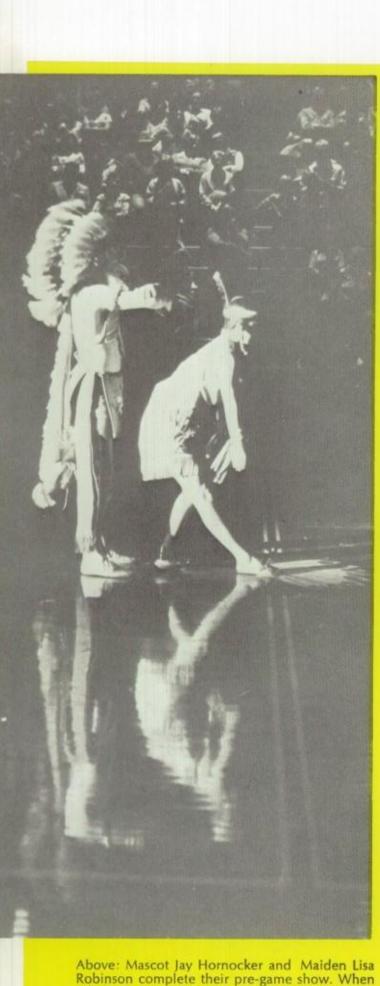

"That's good; sometimes I didn't like the vegetable they were serving. Now I'll get to have a choice."

year. Right: Juli Baker and Rob Pickett greet each other with a "na-no, na-no" handshake. This handshake was made famous by the most popular television show, Mork and Mindy. The show stared Robin Williams, an alien from Ork.

"Speaking of having choices, if you could pick any concert to go to, who would you go see?"

"I'd probably go see the Blues Brothers."

"That seems to be a popular choice. Everyone I've asked has mentioned them. I'm allowed to go to concerts now, so I've just been asking around about who to see."

"Let's talk to everyone at school and see if they want to go to a concert some time."

"How about next weekend?"

"There might not be any concerts then, but we could always go to a movie. What would you like to see?"

"Well, I've heard that Halloween and Every Which Way But Loose are both good."

"Okay. We'll ask around this week at school and see who wants to go."

"Every time that we talk about going back to school, I get more excited! We're finally seniors and it's going to be such a good year. Everyone's so fired up for this year; they've all got so much spirit."

"I know. I hope that the spirit everyone has now will carry throughout the year. I also hope that people will be able to see the spirit in everything that we do this year."

"Yes, like in sports we can show our spirit by winning and by supporting all of the teams. We can also show our spirit in our classes by having a lot of initiative and getting good grades."

"That's the idea. I also hope it shows in large membership and a great number of activities in our clubs and organizations."

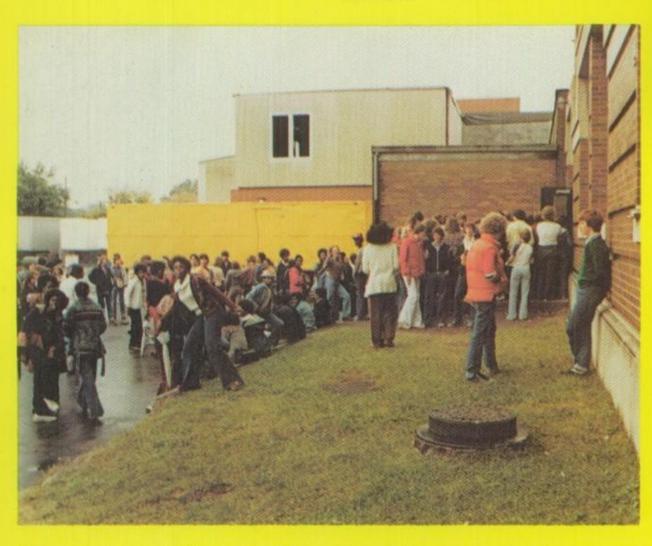

"Even though we have to face the problems of the construction this year, I think everyone has already decided to make the best of it. After all, once the building is finished there will be much bigger and better facilities for the Indians."

"You're right. Well, I'm going to try to get out and play one more afternoon of tennis before school starts. Even though we won't have much free time from now on, I'm glad school is starting again."

"Me too. There's so much to look forward to this year, and when it comes to a year at AHS, we know that THE BEST THING IS BEING HERE."

Personal Calls

"Hello."

"Hi, what are you doing Friday night?"

"Nothing, why?"

"Would you like to go to homecoming with me?"

"Sure, but only under one condition."

"What's that?"

"If I go to homecoming with you, you'll come to see our Thespian play God's Favorite next Thursday."

"That sounds okay to me. I have to ride in the homecoming parade on the French Club float, so I'll just meet you at the game on Friday, okay? Then we can go to the dance at the Wigwam after the game."

"Okay, but I'm riding in the parade, too, on the junior class float. Our float is the best one." "Our float will definitely give you guys some stiff competition."

"Let's just wait and see. Are you sure you're going to come to our play next Thursday? It's at 8:00 in the gym."

"I said I'd be there, didn't I? I'll have to get out of band practice a little early, but I should be able to get there by 8:00."

"I hope so. I'm sure you'll enjoy it."

"I know I will. Well, I've got to go now. Singers Unlimited are performing tonight at 7:30 and we have to be there by 7:00."

"You'd better hurry! Doesn't it seem like you're constantly going to something for one activity or another?"

"Yes, but that's half of the fun of going to AHS. I know that when it comes to activities, THE BEST THING IS BE-ING HERE."

PARTYLINE

Getting a Busy Signal

With all of the things that AHS students find to do, it's no wonder that a 24 hour day seems much shorter. After spending seven hours at school, Indians branched out in many directions, filling their time with activities that they enjoyed.

Many students found after-school jobs in the businesses around Anderson. While working took up a lot of time, most of those who were employed felt it was worth it. The extra money came in handy for dates and clothes, and saving for after graduation was a priority for those with jobs.

For those who didn't work and had their homework done, if they had any, something was always found to fill up the time. Many Indians had interests in areas such as art, electronics and athletics. Jogging, playing basketball, bike riding and tennis were popular among those who had the urge to get out and exercise. In the colder months, sledding and ice skating took the place of the fall and spring sports, at least for those who chose to brave the freezing temperatures.

Week ends were a time for ballgames, dates and sleep.

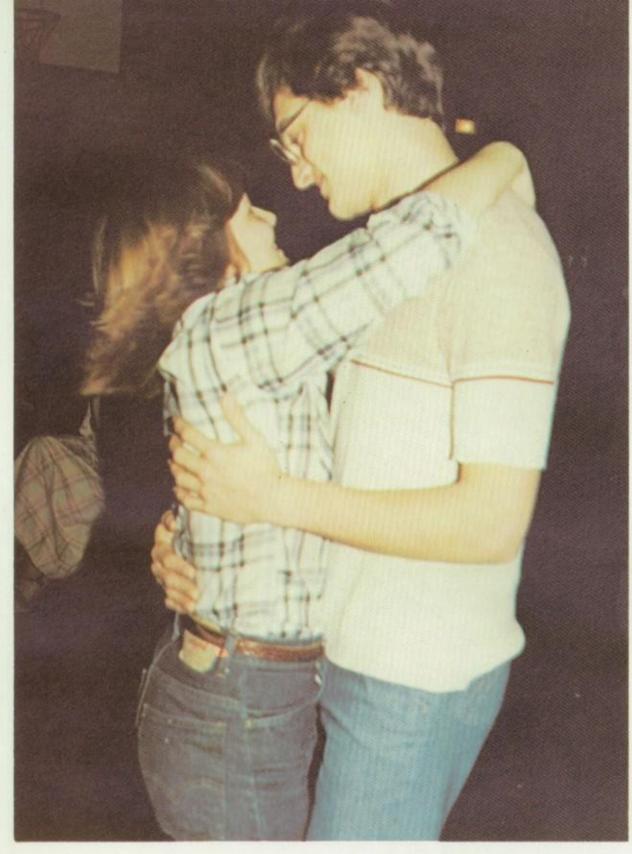

AHS students filled their spare time with many activities. While not everyone agreed on how to spend the time, they had one goal of making sure that every minute was packed with action.

Marchers display dedication

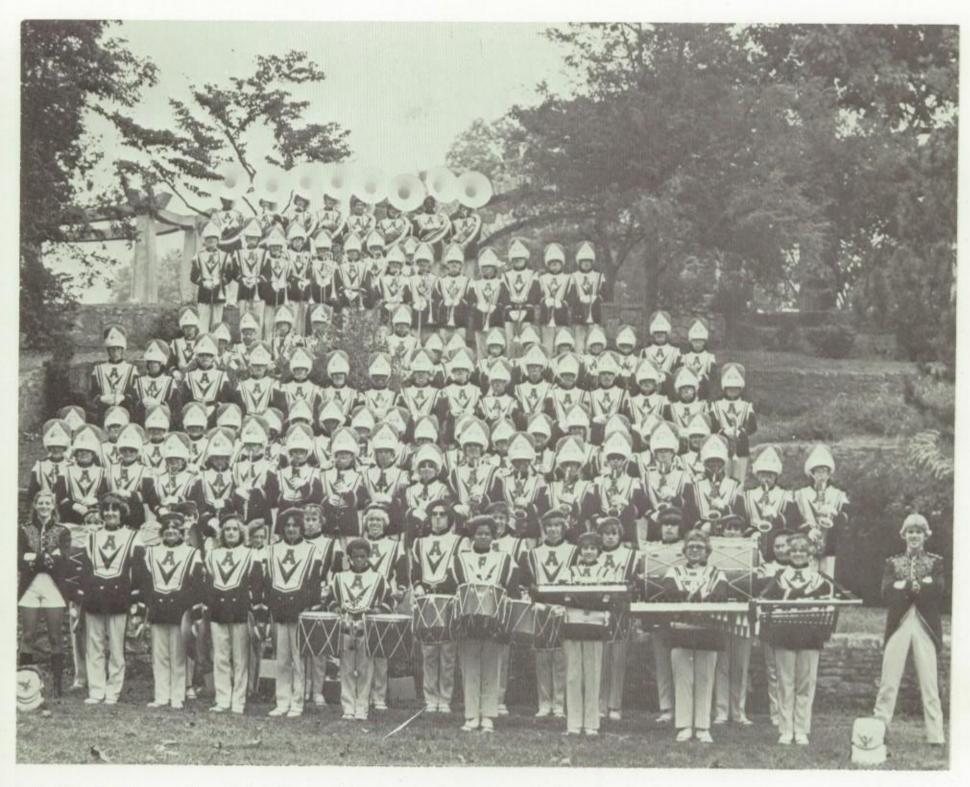

It was a big year for the Marching Indians, and it didn't begin when school started. In fact, it did not even begin before school started. The band, including the rifles, colour guard, and Indianettes, practiced all summer in preparation for the Indiana State Fair Band Day Contest. And what a summer it was! The 179 members of the band marched their way through a performance that ended up winning them third place in the State Fair Contest.

At State Fair, they joined numerous other high school bands for morning competition, then were asked back for the evening's final band competition as the field narrowed. Their well-polished evening performance earned them the third place honors.

Of course, the performances didn't stop with contest, though competition was a major part of the band's curriculum. They also performed at all the home football games during the half-time break as well as providing their music before, during, and after the home basketball games. Members were also responsible for providing the drum beat for the mascot-maiden dance.

The instruments were directed by Mr. Don Hoffman. Mr. Charles Hoffman was responsible for the colour guard, and Mrs. Sandra Amos lead the Indianettes.

HARMONY

Seaver's singers swing soulfully

Three singing groups, Choral Club, Madrigals, and Singers Unlimited, made up the choral department this year. Mr. Rick Seaver once again took charge of all three groups, leading them through contests and performances throughout the year.

Again, the construction made it difficult for the groups to practice in the old choral room. Nevertheless, they made the best out of available space and put to use the old wrestling room underneath the stage in the gymnasium.

Candy bars provided the funds this year for various projects. Money leftover from the candy sales will go toward a trip to Hawaii for next year's Choral Club members. The annual shipment of oranges and grapefruit from Florida also was sold to make money.

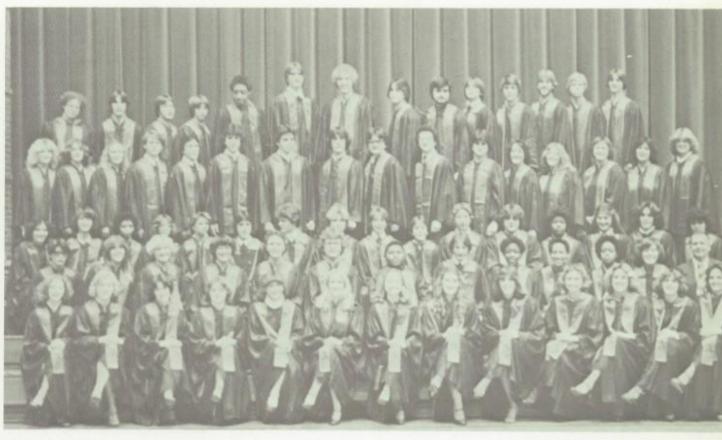

The Singers Unlimited traveled to Fort Wayne in February to the Bishop Luers contest. The Singers brought home a fourth place trophy from that event.

Choral Club put on their rendition of Handel's Mesiah during the holiday season at the First Methodist Church. The Madrigals also entertained for various community groups during the Christmas season, sometimes doing three or four performances a day. Try-outs for the groups are held in the spring.

ACTION

activities

The high school version of government, Student Council, was headed this year by President Jeff Hamilton. Students are elected each year out of each homeroom to represent fellow homeroom members.

Besides taking responsibility for the Homecoming parade and queen election process, Council also sponsored the Fall-Windup dance. The theme for Fall Windup this year was "Gold Rush" and the music was furnished by Spokane.

Council also involves themselves with other activities such as the student-faculty basketball game, their annual skating party, Twirp, and occasional soc-hops after the basketball games.

While many are under the impression that Council is just an opportunity to earn a credit for doing little, the amount of work involved is considerable. Members are not graded every six weeks but given a semester grade according to their participation in the various activities. Each week, meetings give members the opportunity to voice their opinions as well as contribute new ideas for future activities.

Even the freshmen were able to have a say as eight ninth grade members were installed second semester. At the end of each school year, new officers are elected to serve the next year.

In order to inform the student body about the purpose of Council and what they had planned for the year, they put on their annual convocation for the entire school. Other activities include the Penny Postman which is a Christmas card delivery service and a carnation sale in February for students who wished to send flowers to their sweethearts for only 75¢.

FASCINATION

Homecoming brings many surprises

High school activities always seem to contain an element of surprise, and this year's Homecoming festivities were no different. The evening's surprises began when the seemingly pleasant weather turned into a drizzling mess, but no spirit was lost and over thirty entries followed the traditional downtown parade route. Starting off the parade were four Corvettes, each carrying one of the Homecoming Queen candidates to the football field to await the crowning at half-time of the football game. The football competition this year was provided by the Kokomo Wildcats.

Surprise number two came with the queen election itself. For the first time in the history of Anderson High School, a sophomore was elected Homecoming queen, that candidate being Dana Johnson. Dana was crowned by the 1977 Homecoming queen, Gina Ellis and the queen's court was made up of senior Chris Wayt, junior Dru Domenic, and freshman candidate Gretchen Irby.

The third surprise of the evening came with the final outcome of the game in favor of the Wildcats rather than the Indians. Nevertheless, the fans didn't let the football loss get them down as they headed for the dry warmth of the gymnasium for the Homecoming Dance.

The parade and the election of the queen were the responsibility of Student Council; the dance was planned by the Senior Executive Council.

"You may now return to your third period class." These words, answered with a gymnasium full of moans and groans, brought to an end the many successful pep sessions and convocations throughout the year.

Periodically, whenever a special occasion arose, the student body tromped through the snow, slush, and construction to the gym to hear speakers, music, or to watch their peers in some other form of entertainment.

After the orientation convos at the beginning of the year, Student Council familiarized the newcomers with their annual convo, followed by the Thanksgiving and Christmas convocations. In mid-fall, the group Free Fare returned once again to provide their renditions of popular songs.

One variation in the convo schedule this year was the lack of a fall sports award convo, though the athletes received proper recognition with their letter jackets, sweaters and other awards.

School spirit was evident at the pep sessions, many of which were led by Coach Held. At the Madison Heights pep session, the senior class displayed their spirit in cheering competition and walked away with the Spirit Stick.

Much pep session support came from the band members tucked away up on the stage and many of the faculty members who more than once left their seats in the bleachers to lead students in cheers.

IMPROVISE

Stage Gone, Fewer Plays

With the loss of Miss Marcia Dadds from the Thespian troupe this year, it was doubtful if the actresses and actors would get along without one of their more experienced sponsors. But that problem was solved with the addition of Mrs. Jan Davidson who cosponsored Thespians this year with Mrs. Maxine Bridges.

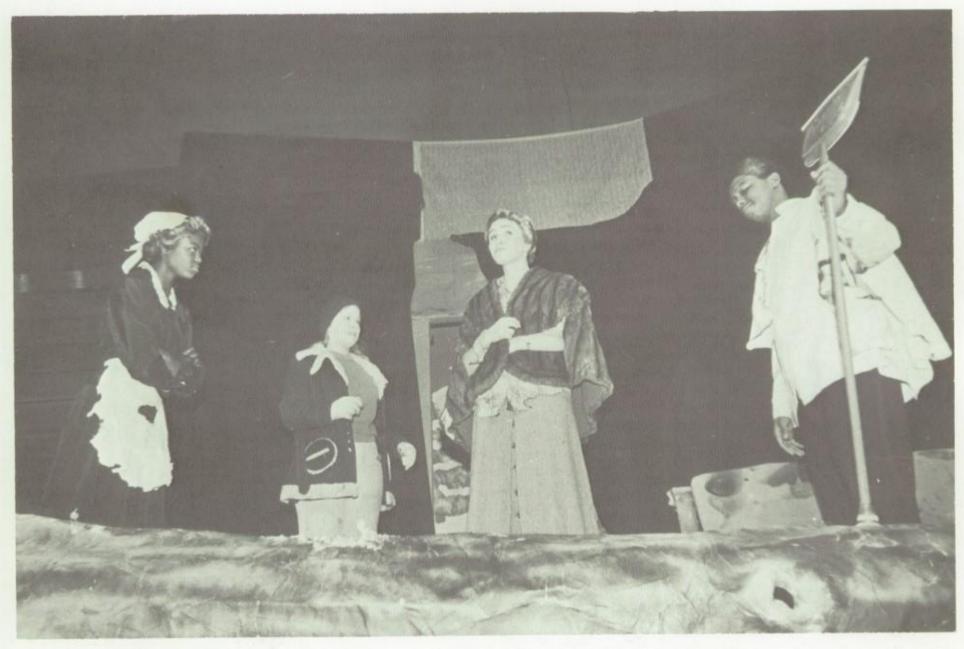

The problems continued throughout the year as the group was left without any place to stage their productions since the auditorium was torn down last year. Once again, however, they managed to come through and acted out their first play on the stage of the gymnasium. "God's Favorite," a comedy by Neil Simon, was the first play of the year and was performed "in the round" and directed by student director Brenda Schmedding.

In late February, the troupe held tryouts for their annual play festival. March 30th was the date for the yearly festival which consisted of several different plays directed and performed by students.

This year's Thespian group was one of the largest troupes to come through AHS, partly because of the large number of freshmen who tried out.

Above: Thespian Aleta Barnes uses her acting talents during tryouts for the annual play-festival. Plays were directed by students who also chose the casts.

This was the Thespians' first production of the year. Performed "in the round", the play was put on for two sizeable audiences on the stage in the gymnasium.

They spent many hours selling advertisements to local merchants to help finance the paper.

INFORMED

Staff keeps school on top

Of the three publications at Anderson High School, the school newspaper, the X-Ray came out the most often. While the Indian and the Little Chief were yearly publications, the X-Ray went to press every week, providing students with the latest of news and features.

Sponsored for the 27th year by Mr. Lee Pursley, the paper had a staff of more than 50 members, making it one of the largest staffs in the history of the X-Ray.

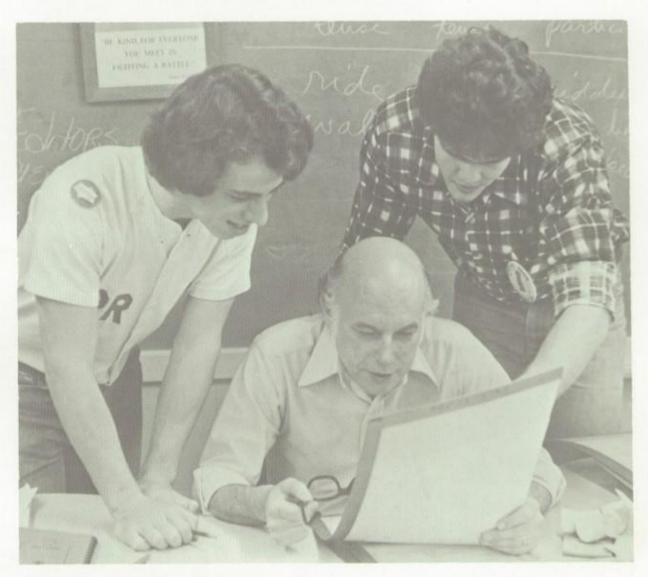

Nobody stayed in the same position throughout the school year, many advancing from reporter to editor-inchief. The staff consisted of reporter, staff writers, sports writers, copyreaders, page editors, managing editors, circulation and business managers, editors-in-chief and associate editors.

As in the past, the X-Ray had a student teacher this year. Miss Leslie Shiel, a Ball State student, spent her student teaching time learning the mechanics of newspaper publication, then applied that knowledge by helping out with the paper.

Mr. Pursley also took charge of the News Bureau staff, a group of student journalists who put out the monthly issue of Smoke Signals.

Right: Mr. Pursley, X-Ray sponsor, reviews proof sheets for the weekly paper with Jeff Smith and Robby Pickett, both staff members. This task must be tackled each week.

SCRIBBLES

Writers Disclose Talent

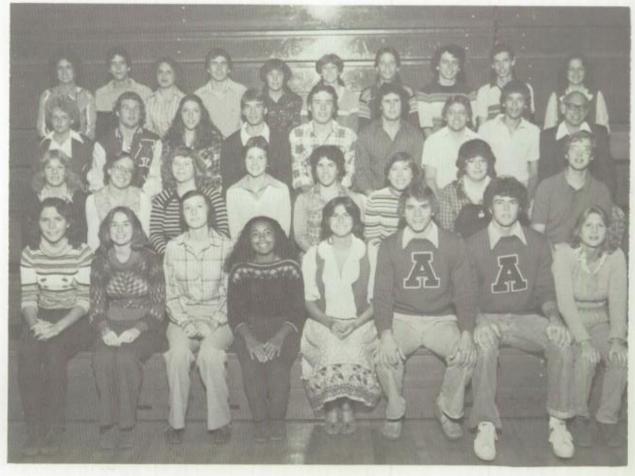

Ouill and Scroll was an honorary literary organization for high school journalists. Students in Quill and Scroll became eligible by completing a semester of a newswriting or publications class, being in the upper third of their class, and expressing an interest in working on the staff of one of the school's literary publications. Many students chose the yearbook staff while others wanted to work on the school paper or literary magazine. Others worked on two or even three of the publications.

The "Little Chief", the AHS literary magazine, was sponsored for the second year by Mrs. Toni Shoemaker. The theme of the book was "Hidden Faces" - a theme used to bring out the many hidden writers within the walls of Anderson High School. Because so many talented writers never reveal their creativity, the "Little Chief" staff felt the need to search out the concealed talent, thus the theme "Hidden Faces".

In its 39th year of existence, the "Little Chief" obtained its material from English classes and creative writing classes. Consisting of fiction, non-fiction, artwork, photographs, poetry and miscellaneous creativity, the "Little Chief" was put together by students and printed at the Vocational School.

DEADLINES

Staff Strives For Success

Though the year may have begun with a picnic for the annual staff, the festivities soon turned to hard work as the 1979 Indian began to fall together.

The yearbook staff was divided into 12 positions: editor, academics, activities, business, circulation, faculty, underclass, and, sports, seniors, index, and photographers. For the first time in the history of the yearbook, the position of editor was made into a coeditorship, with the two positions belonging to seniors Stacie Cumberland and Jim Hackler.

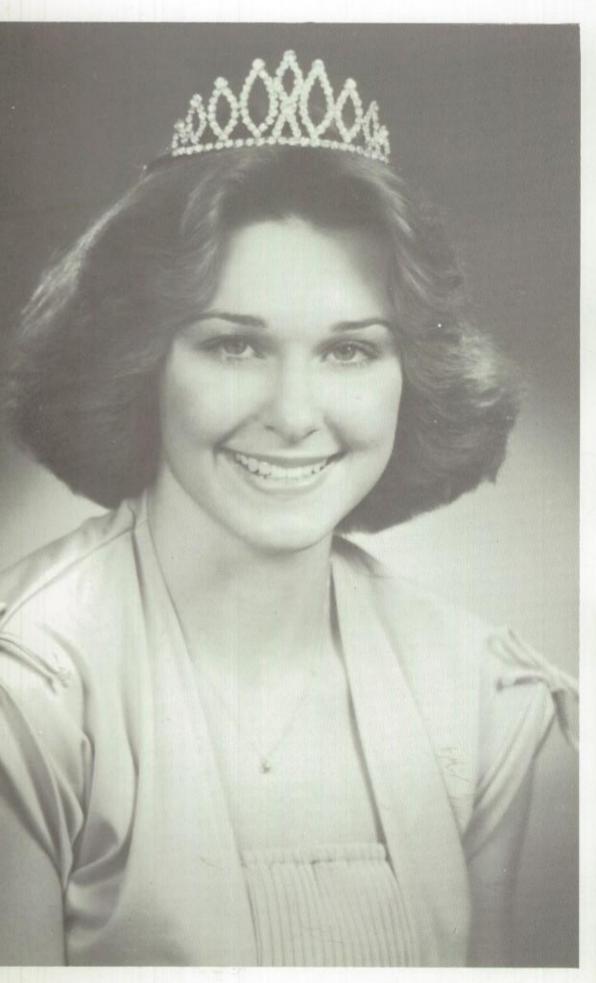

Mrs. Lucinda McCord returned for her second year as yearbook sponsor, coaching the 23 member staff. In order to prepare for the year's duties, four staff members went to the Indiana University Journalism Institute over the summer. Stacie Cumberland, Jim Hackler, Jeff Ehrlick, and Cindy Sussex spent two weeks in July and August polishing their journalistic skills. The theme for the book, "The Best Thing is Being Here," was conceived and developed at the I.U. workshop.

Though many staff members had some difficulty meeting the January and March deadlines, everything was completed in time for the seniors to receive their books before graduation, a goal decided upon at the beginning of the year.

DAZZLE

Prom Queen Angie Hay

Reigning as prom queen has always been considered an outstanding honor for girls of the junior class. This year all three candidates not only were attractive, but they also served their school in many ways. All were presidents of their homerooms which made them a member of Junior Executive Council, the directing body of the junior class Queen Angie Hay, served as varsity cheerleader and lettered in track as did attendant Dru Domenic, while attendant Karen Jackson served as recording secretary for Student Council.

Junior boys pick queen

Though many aspects of life at AHS changed this year, the prom was one thing that remained the same. Tradition once again played a big part in the planning of the year's final dance.

As in past years, Jr. Executive Council took charge of the dance, the prom queen selection, and the actual crowning of the queen. Again, there was some controversy over whether the dance would be open or closed to underclassmen and other Madison County students. Tradition won out again, however, and the Executive Council decided to leave the prom closed once again.

Members of the junior class who wanted to help work on prom had to sign up to work the coat check at the basketball games. Funds from the coat check financed the dance, refreshments, band, and queen's crown.

Queen selection began in February with the junior boys voting for three consecutive weeks on whom they wanted to be queen. First they chose candidates from their homerooms, then the field was narrowed to the three final candidates, Angie Hay, Dru Domenic, and Karen Jackson.

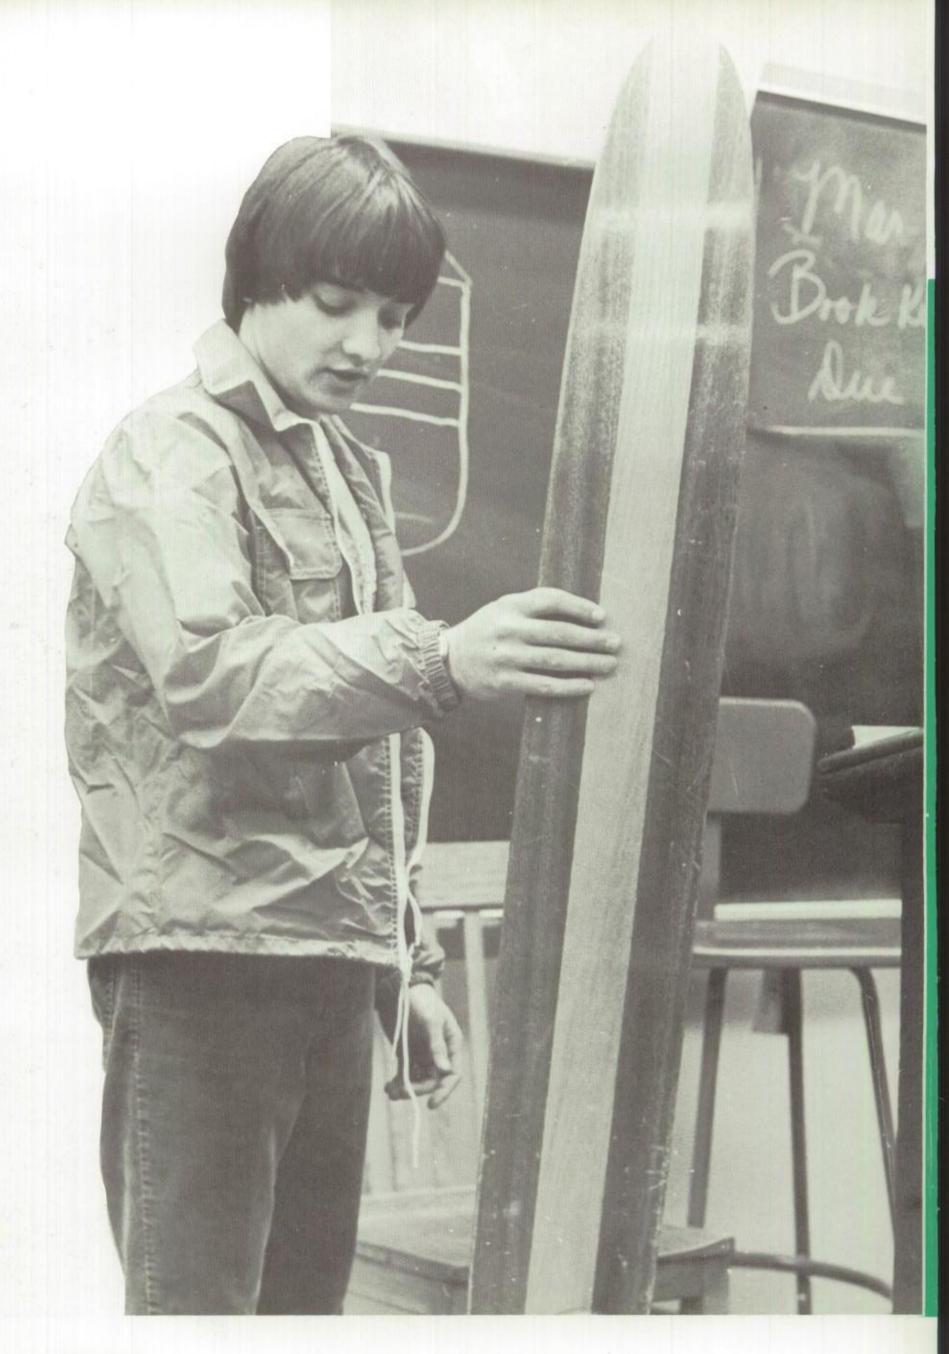

The theme of the prom was "When You Wish Upon a Star." The entertainment was provided by the band. Why On Earth? Junior Executive Council members decorated and planned the entire event, while sophomores stayed after the dance and cleaned up and tore down the decorations.

Last year's queen Kim Irby was on hand to crown the new queen. Officers of the junior class participated in the traditional Grand March.

"Hello."

"Hi, John, have you done your chemistry lab yet?"

"Chemistry lab? Are you kidding? I haven't even thought of an idea for my story in English. I'll probably never get around to my chemistry lab."

"It sure is a rough one. Either we did the lab all wrong, or I can't read the information we took down."

"That's because of the silver sulfide you spilled all over the lab report when you were cleaning up the lab table."

"Is that what that is? No wonder my numbers all look so funny!"

"Let me take a look at it in the morning, maybe I can figure it out."

"Okay, I guess we can still get it written up before third hour."

"I've still got to think of something to write a story about. Any ideas?"

"Are you kidding? I'm the world's worst story writer!"

"I know what you mean. My mind refuses to be creative and original when it comes to writing."

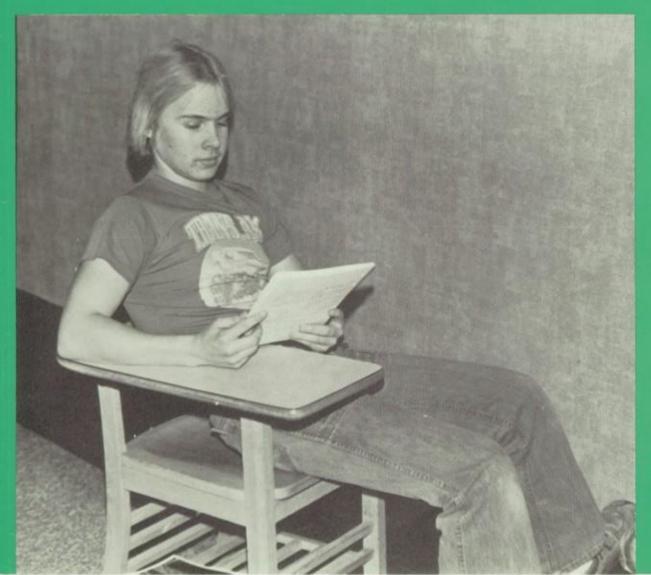

"School seems to be a drag right now. There's so much to do and hardly any time to do it. Sometimes I wonder why I make myself take all of these hard classes; I think I enjoy watching myself suffer."

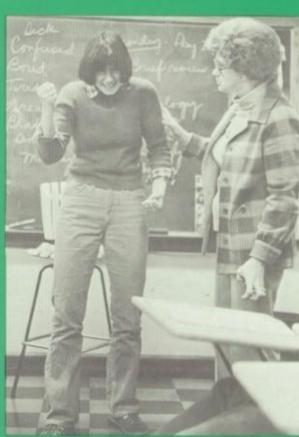

"But you'll be so glad that you took all of these classes later on, even though they may not seem worth all of the trouble now."

"You're right, I'm sure I'll get a lot of use out of the stuff I'm learning now."

"You know, you hear a lot of kids talking about how awful their classes are, but I'm glad that we're offered such a wide variety of classes.

When it comes to learning at AHS, THE BEST THING IS BEING HERE.

Flowers, bark, leaves and anything else that would make a color were collected by American studies students. Why? American studies students made their own paint by boiling these things. After making the paint in class, they used it to paint messages like those that the Indians once painted.

Another day, American studies class held a Puritan church service. Boys and girls sat on separate sides of the room while the Parson led them in prayers and hymns. In this way, they could understand how it really felt to be a Puritan.

American studies combined two classes, U.S. history and American literature, into one two-hour class. "By combining the two, there is a better understanding of the literature because the period it was written in is studied along with it," explained Mr. Larry Barnhart.

Psychology students also learned by doing but perhaps in a different way.

Some students fasted for three days to show what effects fasting has on the body. Others tried going for three days without speaking one word. This way they understood how it would feel to be unable to speak.

Teaching to learn best described exploratory teaching. Each student went to an elementary school, teaching for one hour a day. Not only did they learn how to teach, but they also decided whether or not they were cut out to be teachers.

Students in government, economics or any other social studies class were eligible to join Social Studies Club. In November Social Studies Club made a trip to Conner Prairie Farm in Noblesville. Each person took a sack lunch and spent the day at this recreation of a pioneer settlement. During second semester, they visited the Gruenewald Home where they studied the Victorian Age. English Boring?

No

A ten-page typewritten research paper was just one of the requirements faced by junior honors English students at AHS. Honors English was available to any sophomore, junior or senior who maintained a high average in English.

Not only did honors English require a research paper but also oral reports, projects and outside reading. Sophomores agonized over novels like The Scarlet Letter and The Chosen. Juniors concentrated on English literature like The Canterbury Tales and Macbeth, while seniors examined types of Chinese poetry and even tried writing some.

Besides honors English, the English Department offered a variety of other courses. Students planning to join the Remedial English students used video machines and earphones to help them learn. Developmental reading class was similar to a speed reading course designed to teach students to read at a faster rate and to comprehend more.

Speech and drama students learned to overcome stagefright and develop acting talents. Some drama students even produced their own films and presented them to the rest of the class. Other English classes available were junior and senior composition, American and world literature and American Studies.

French Club Tops

125 people! French Club was the largest club at Anderson High this year with 125 members. They wanted to do something "a little different" this year, so members decided to raise money for charity. The next problem was just how to raise the money. After many suggestions, the idea of a disco marathon won. French Club officers Elaine Kistner, Laurie Kistner, Nancy Stickler and Julie Degitz, along with sponsor Mrs. Debbie Hodson, helped plan the French Club Homecoming float which won third place in the parade.

Also, for a second year, French students of all grades worked together and put out L'Etoile Francais, the French newspaper. It included club happenings, puzzles, articles on students and the "Is It True..." column, which won the most support. A good example of one is "Is it true that French students are the most enthusiastic of any at AHS?" The answer to this one was unanimous among French students. Oui!

Spanish, Fun and Chaos

Blindfolded Spanish Club initiates soon discovered that tub full of soggy spaghetti felt a great deal like a tub full of worms; anything and everything was possible at a Spanish Club initiation. (especially if it was on Halloween) The Halloween/initiation party was held at Mrs. Voorhis' home. Initiates were blindfolded and sent through a dark "basement of horror!"

The Christmas party was conducted differently. Club members gathered again at Mrs. Voorhis' house, singing carols in Spanish, before going out carolling through the neighborhood. After carolling everyone joined in the traditional fun of breaking the pinata.

For the last year, students were crowded into the tiny Spanish room. But the crowded conditions and near-by construction kept students alive.

After the initiation German Club began making plans for a trip to King's Island. They debated ways to finance the trip and eventually decided on selling candy. They planned to make the trip in May when the weather turned nice. Also, the club members made plans for their annual trip to the Hansel and Gretel restaurant. The Hansel and Gretel is a German restaurant in Indianapolis where students could taste real German food.

The German dance team was a relatively new addition to the German curricula. Once a week after school, the group practiced folk dances.

Senior Brains

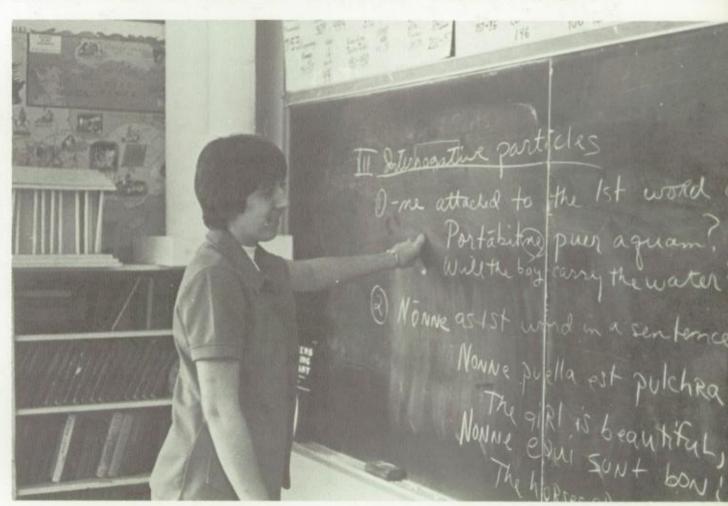

The National Honor Society at Anderson was made up of seniors maintaining a grade point average of at least 3.5 and a personality rating of at least 2.0. The new Honor Society members were chosen in the second six weeks of the second semester. Invitations to join were passed out, and the first meeting was held on March 29. At the annual Honor Society convocation on April 20th, new members were introduced to the student body. The initiation ceremony and banquet was held on April 24th at Old Student Center at Anderson College. Parents were welomed to attend the banquet of Honor Society, a nationwide organization. The officers were as follows: Mary Anne Robinson, pres.; Louise Mudd, v.p.; Elaine Kistner, sec.; Julie Degitz, treas.; and Mr. W. M. von Buchler, sponsor.

Latin Club Tows the Line

Empty M & M's boxes filling waste baskets and scattered throughout the halls showed that the M & M monster returned to AHS. Where could it be found? By the end of the year nearly everyone knew that it could be found in room 301 and was always only too happy to exchange some starving student a box of M & M's for 50¢. Of course, Latin Club members were also around to sell some. Latin Club profits from the M & M sale were put toward various activities such as entering a car in the Homecoming parade. Latin students began making flowers for their entry well in advance. However, much to their dismay, the end result of many hours spent working was a red Chevette with only half of it covered. The unique thing about the entry was that it was towed in the parade by a tow truck.

Personalities Speak In Class

Since 1975, colorful wall paintings brightened up the hallways and added individuality to Anderson High. These paintings were done by talented art students who were willing to spend the time to paint them. When remodeling began, however, nearly every one of these was covered up with wallpaper. While some students were sad to see this rather new tradition end, others were downright mad. Many tiring hours of work were ruined and those who had painted them had no say in the matter. Not only did the paintings add individuality to AHS, but they also helped students, especially the freshmen, find their way around the crowded hallways.

The anger soon quieted, though, and art students directed their attention towards developing their artistic talents. Those who wished to spend extra time on art joined Art Club. Art Club officers, Jil Campbell, Cindy Buckner, and Chris Wayt planned events such as The Fall Fest, a Halloween party and the annual trip to an art museum.

Training Leads to Careers

Creative students developed their industrial skills in the Industrial Arts Department. Classes appealing to all industrial interests were offered to girls as well as boys. Many students learned a skill that would prepare them for college or a trade.

Individuality became the key word in classes such as woods. Students designed their own wood projects, depending on the amount of previous experience. For nearly 180 days, saws, drills and other machines were constantly being used by busy students.

In power classes, students worked on automobile engines as well as other machines. With a hydraulic lift in the shop, students were able to practice lubricating the chassis and changing the oil. They also learned to make safety precautions.

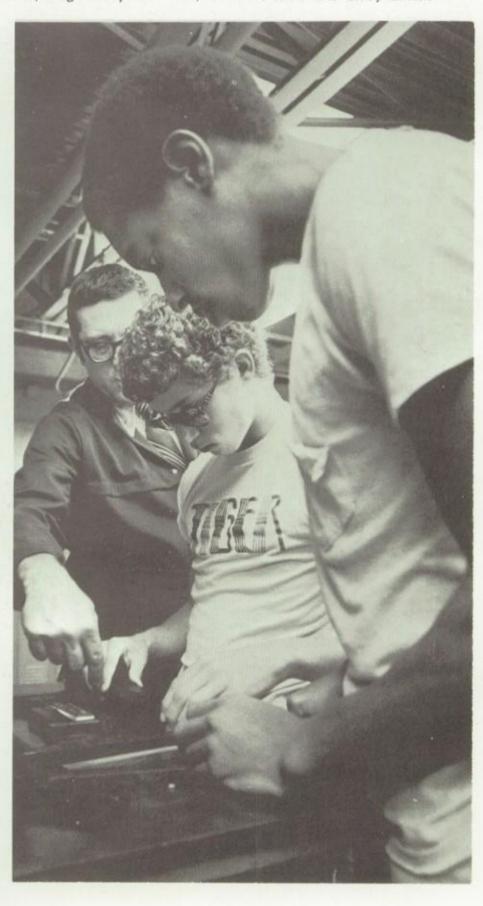

Ambitious students took classes such as drafting which would prepare them for careers in architecture and engineering. Metals and plastics taught students a trade that could be useful with or without college. In graphic arts, students learned about printing, silkscreens, setting the print type and using machinery such as the graphic press which also would be useful in future careers.

Worms. Yuch! Dissecting organisms like worms and frogs promised to keep biology class interesting and biology students on their toes. All freshmen were required to take biology. Those who found dissecting to be their niche decided to take zoology. In zoology class, students dissected more complicated organisms such as sharks and pigs. Having to memorize parts and bone structures of various organisms proved to be a common peeve shared by many zoology students.

While biology and zoology classes consisted primarily of freshmen and sophomores, chemistry classes were made up of mostly juniors and seniors. Chemistry was regarded by many students as being one of the most difficult and challenging classes at Anderson High. Perhaps even more difficult than chemistry were physics, honors chemistry and honors physics.

Math-Adding It All Up

Many students prepared for the future by taking math courses at Anderson High. Careers in computer technology, engineering, accounting, chemistry and many others required special training in math. While some colleges required a minimum of one year of math for admittance, others required three.

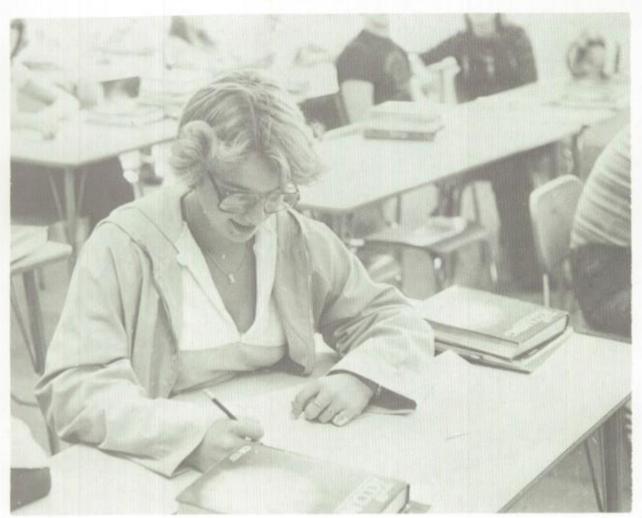

The Math Department offered classes from basic math to calculus. Students had the opportunity to work with computers in some classes. The computer was a fairly new addition to the Math Department. Added in 1976 the computer was connected to the terminal at Anderson College.

Besides the computer, other tools were also used in teaching as well as in learning math. Calculators, slide rules, compasses, protractors and visual aids helped students and teachers. The Math Department at AHS paved the road for the futures of many ambitious students.

Whose Business Is It?

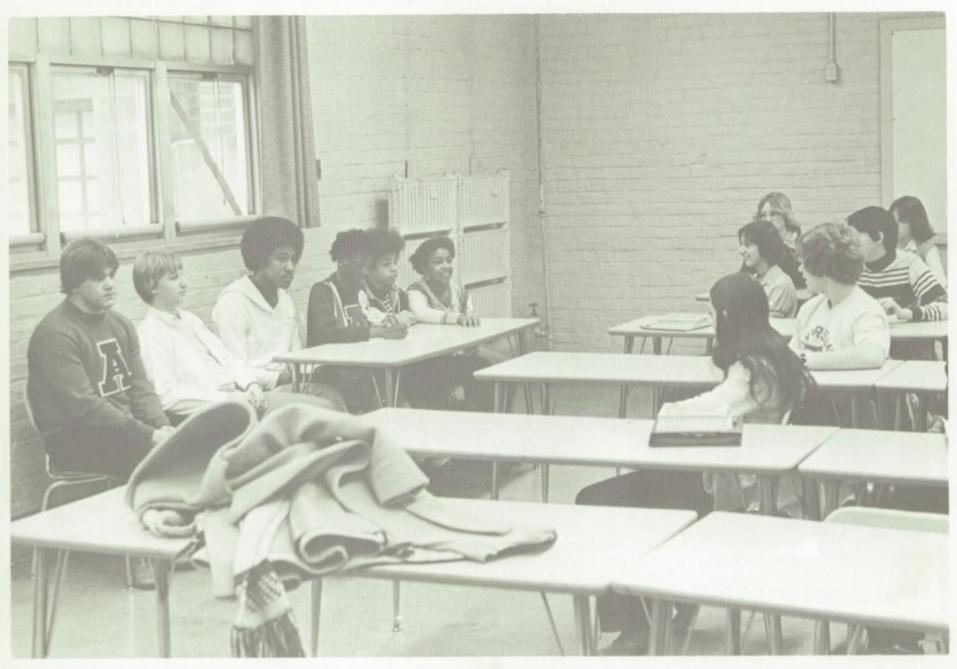

The Business Department at Anderson High helped students work towards post-graduation goals. While some prepared for college, others acquired skills in high school that would help them find jobs. The Business Department at AHS not only helped students prepare for jobs or college, it also presented them with information that was vital to their very existences. Paying taxes, borrowing money, signing contracts, figuring the cost of something, buying on time payments, going on trips, getting "cheated," selling something, planning for the future and striving for something better were problems that nearly everyone would face sometime in the future. The Business Department presented many courses, dealing with matters such as these.

Four semesters of typing were offered to 10th, 11th, and 12th graders. Typing I and II students learned a personal use level of typing, while Typing III and IV students learned a college or job level of typing. Accounting classes learned primarily how to keep business records. Business English could be taken as a business or English elective. Students learned items such as how to write personal and business letters.

"Don't sign until you know what can happen to you," was one of the warnings that business law students were taught. Juvenile rights, criminal rights and contracts were also studied.

Other business classes such as business math, general business, shorthand, advanced business and clerical office practice added variety to the Business Department.

Learning From Experience

Students wishing to get on-the-job training and expecting to enter a full time occupation after graduation often enrolled in the cooperative education program offered to juniors and seniors at AHS. Also students planning to go to college or technical school and students who were uncertain of future career plans gained valuable knowledge and firsthand experience by taking a co-op course.

The Distributive Education Club of America, DECA, was open to students interested in sales and distribution orientated jobs. Many students took jobs at places such as department stores, clothing stores etc. through DECA. The DECA program also had an 11th grade class that enrolled students who planned to be placed on the job their senior year.

Cooperative Office Education was available exclusively to 12th graders. Students in this group must have made above average grades in business classes like typing and shorthand in their underclass years. Preceding tourney time, COE sold red, white and green t-shirts which read "We believe." COE students also planned to have a disco in February.

Lesson Learned, $ Earned

Whether it be $2 on a pair of jeans or $2,000 on a house, consumer management students learned the true meaning of "A penny saved is a penny earned". Consumer management students learned to make money go farther by making wise decisions concerning products and services. In learning to make wise decisions, students studied consumer math (which is the better buy — one for 85¢ or six for $4.99?), unit pricing, listing and guarantees. Also the class did comparison shopping on frequently bought items like jeans. They looked around at several different stores, comparing prices and the quality. In class, they learned what things to look for when making any purchase.

Although inflation kept prices soaring higher and higher, the Home Economics Department offered help. As well as the consumer management class, other home economics classes helped to keep students one step ahead of the increasingly high cost of living resulting from inflation.

In 1978 the inflation rate was a whopping 9%. The inflation rate for 1979 was expected to be anywhere from 10% to 15%. Although there was no way to avoid this tremendous inflation rate, the Home Economics Department taught students how to deal with inflation. Classes in the Home Department included clothing, foods, family living and child life.

Growing, Learning Together

Cooperative Vocational Education programs at AHS were elective courses in which employers throughout the community cooperate in training students for future careers. Students normally worked in an occupation of their choice for a minimum of 15 hours a week. All students were paid the rate depending upon their occupation.

Cooperative Health Occupations was a course for those interested in jobs such as a dental assistant, pharmacy assistant, teacher's aid for handicapped children, x-ray assistant or medical office assistant. Many students taking CHO were employed in dental clinics or hospitals. CHO was open to all juniors and seniors. Many college bound students began careers like pharmacy, nursing and health occupations by taking CHO.

Home Economics Related Occupations was another co-op program available to 11th and 12th graders. Students wishing to learn more about home economics related careers gained firsthand experience through HERO in jobs such as a waitress, cook, chef, day nursery personnel etc. Students in HERO and students in CHO sold candy and greenery (around Christmas) to earn money for the organization. Some students attended state conventions.

Guys, Gals - Start Engines

Physical education students "started their engines" in a variety of ways. One favorite was learning to disco. A professional disco teacher came in to gym classes several Fridays to help students learn this popular dance. Fridays not spent discoing were spent square dancing. Mr. Held taught students square dances such as the Virginia Reel and the Texas Star.

Early morning swimming in gym frequently resulted in the "wet hair despair." However, to many students wet hair was the least of their worries. Jumping in to a freezing pool of ice cold water at 7:30 in the morning helped to wake up first hour students.

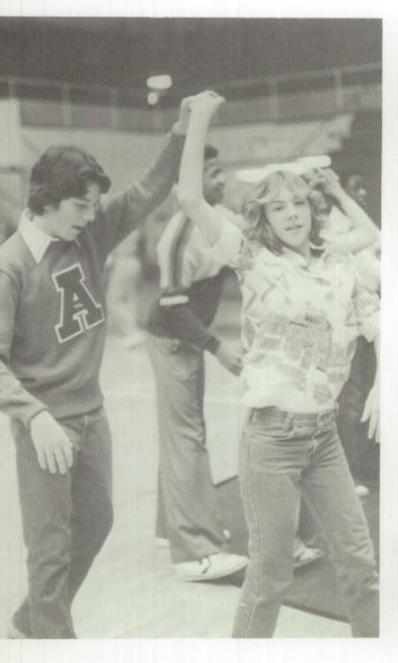

Volleyball, soccer, basketball, tumbling, weight lifting and modern dance were other activities the gym classes participated in. Many students won the Presidential Physical Fitness Awards by scoring above 85% in the 50 yard dash, shuttle run, 600, chin-up or bar hang, sit-ups and the standing broad jump.

Starting the engine of the driver's education cars was no trouble for most people. The problem usually came after the engine was started. A nervous giggle, butterflies and trembling hands were symptoms of the "I've never driven before" drivers education student. Fastening their seatbelts and taking a deep breath, the driver's instructors tried to keep their cool when students accidentally opened the hood instead of releasing the parking brake. Not all driver's ed. students were first time drivers. There could nearly always be heard some student telling of his tragic escapades while "cruisin' in his dad's car." While it was quite obvious the first day just who had and had not driven before, by the end of the semester it was not quite so noticeable.

Calling the Shot

"Hello."

"Hi, Susan. Want to go to the swim meet?"

"Swim meet? Who goes to swim meets?"

"That's the trouble — nobody does."

"Then why should we be different?"

"Because this is their last meet and so far they are undefeated."

"I didn't know that. The only sport that I ever hear about is basketball."

"I know. The basketball team is great, as usual. They should win their third straight sectional."

"That'd be really neat! While we're talking about basketball, do you want to go to the game at Marion Friday night? It should pe a good game because the Giants are tough. Of course, the Indians are better though."

"Okay, we'll go, but meanwhile we can back other sports, too."

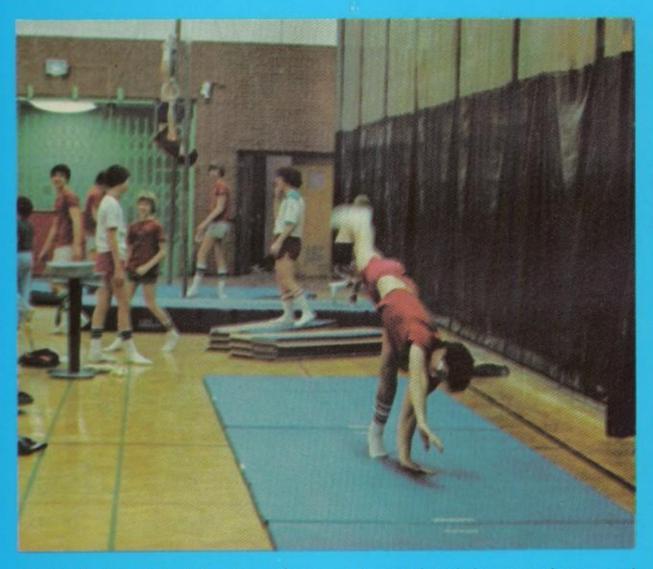

"All right. Let's go to the swim meet."

"Well, we could also go to the guys' gymnastics meet against the Pirates, or the girls' gymnastics meet at Pendleton, or the wrestling match at Highland..."

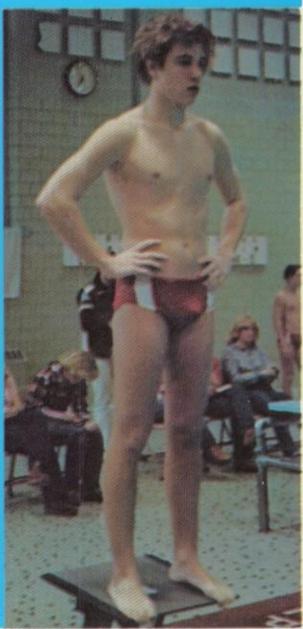

"Wow! There is a lot more than basketball at AHS!

"See, there are a lot of teams at AHS that need our support. We can back the basketball team and the other teams, too. I'll pick you up at six and we'll go to the swim meet and watch them swamp North Central, okay?"

"Okay, that sounds like fun to me. I love to watch any Indian team win. I guess that we could just listen to the results of the meet on the morning announcements like everyone else, but we know that for any Indian sporting event, THE BEST THING IS BEING HERE.

Girls Lose To MH

For the first time in his three years at the helm of the Anderson High Girls Basketball program, Coach Bob Kearns' team didn't make it through the tough Anderson sectional.

"There were four teams in our sectional," Kearns said, "that could have won most of the regionals around the state."

Kearns was speaking of his Indians, Pendleton Heights, Highland and the eventual champ Madison Heights.

The Indians girls cruised through the regular season with a 13-4 record with losses to the Pirates and to a strong Wes Del club.

In sectional action the Tribe drew lowly Frankton and massacred them 48-12. In second round action the Indians defeated a tall but slow Pendleton Heights to win the right to play the undefeated Madison Heights Pirates.

The Bucs downed the Tribe for the second time to take the sectional championship, 40-33. The Pirates went on to finish second in the state to East Chicago Washington at the state tournament.

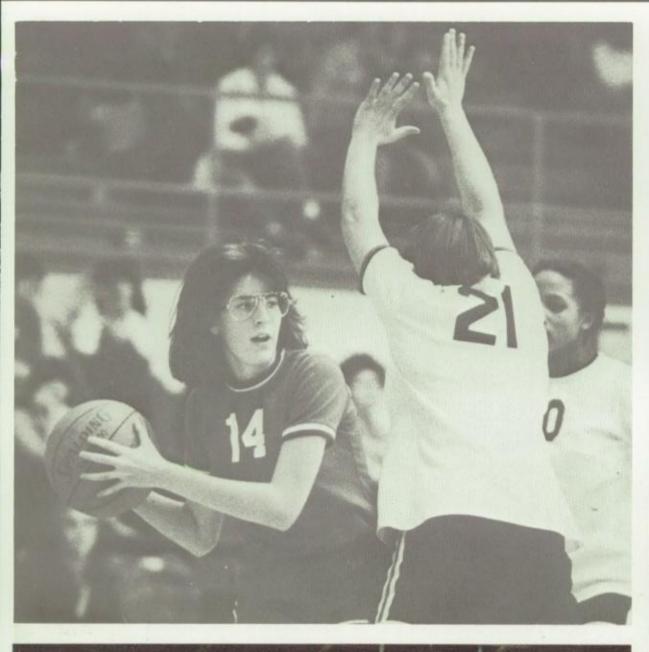

Senior Angee Humes and junior

Melody Teague carried the weight for the girls most all year long and both were rewarded at the conclusion of the season by being named to the allcounty team by the Anderson Daily Bulletin.

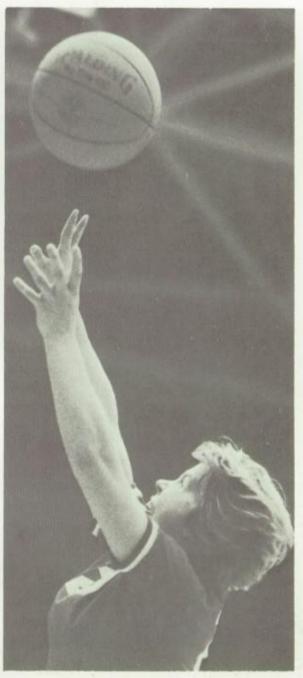

Guards Dee Dee Rhemel, a transfer from Frankton, and Angie Rector also shared staring time with forward Carla Mullen.

The reserve girls were successful during their season as they compiled a 13-1 record. Stacie Streaty, Tami Glazier, and Karen Reese all played important parts for the squad.

Top to Bottom

Sitting 9-0 and second in both wire service polls, it looked as though the Indians were the only team in the state that could even consider challenging number one ranked South Bend Adams.

But then came that weekend in Muncie and the massacre at the hands of Kokomo and still yet, that trip to Carmel.

The Indians dropped five out of six and found themselves nowhere in the polls.

"I don't know what it is," said coach Norm Held. "But every year we are going along fine and then boom — we lose a bunch all at once."

Not only did the midseason slump take the Indians from the polls, it all but eliminated them from the conference race.

The slump began one weekend in Muncie. On Friday night the number 2 ranked Indians visited the number 3 ranked Bearcats, and the Cats were all but good hosts. The Bearcats thoroughly trounced the Tribe 86-77 as they never trailed. Then the following night the Indians returned to the Muncie Fieldhouse to be edged by lowly Muncie North.

It looked like the Indians could rebound though as they came back to the Wigwam to down Madison Heights in a thriller.

This was not to be, however.

The following Friday the Indians were handed their worst defeat in Held's coaching days here as Kokomo embarassed the Tribe, 84-67.

On Saturday the Indians drove to Carmel for more of the same as Carmel thwarted them, 77-55.

The following week the Indians dropped an all important conference game at Logansport 59-48 in their worst offensive performance of the year.

Seniors Pat Skaggs, Bret Campbell, Tim McNeese and Lyle Kirtz all shared starting time with juniors Shawn Teague and Henry Johnson.

Skaggs was named first team all-NCC after finishing second in conference scoring. He, along with Teague Campbell, and Johnson, were named to the all-county squad.

Frosh - Tops

Underclass basketball was really something special at AHS during the 1978-79 campaign. All three teams combined for a 40-5 overall record, with the reserve adding five defeats.

"We won our games this year with strong team play," said first year reserve coach Jerome Foley. Foley coached the reserves this year after their head coach, Greg Kirby, took the varsity job at Portage High School.

"I really respect these kids because they really worked their tails off," Foley went on to say.

One of the reserve losses was turned into a victory when it was learned that Muncie Central had used an ineligible player, making for the record their slate 16-4.

Juniors Steve Buffington, Scott Maynard, Jim Poat and Larry Jackson played integral parts in the reserve success. Dan Woshitz also played well before being moved up to the varsity at Christmas time.

A host of sophomores aided the juniors, and they were John Eisele, Rick Iones, Steve Meyers, Neil Rosenbarger and Nate Wheeler who started and played in 11 games and then suffered a broken ankle.

But the freshmen team was the epitomy of success. Neither the A or the B squad suffered one defeat.

An undefeated season was not that unusual for these youngsters. Since they began playing together in 7th grade, they have never lost a game.

Reserves Lose Talent

For the second straight year Don De-Salle and his coaching staff brought winning football back to AHS.

The Tribe varsity finished off the year with a 5-5 record which has to be a winning season when one takes into mind the schools on the Indian football schedule.

DeSalle, in his third year at AHS, saw this year's team as a possible 7-3 or 8-2 football squad, but inconsistency on defense and lack of a passing threat hurt the Tribe in all five losses.

"When you consider all of the young people we played this year," said DeSalle, "a 5-5 season is not all that bad.

"Also, we should have a lot of experienced people coming back next year."

A real bright spot for the Indians this year was the running of senior scatback Lyle Kirtz. Kirtz broke the AHS rushing record that was set last year by Eddie Foggs, making he and Foggs the only two Indians ever to rush over 1,000 yards.

Left: The blocking of Andy Grant (34) and Tony Skinner (65) was one of the main cogs in the Indian Offense this year. They are shown here against Huntington.

Kirtz rushed for 1,306 yards this season and also set a new school record for most yards in a game with his 229 against Marion. He was also named Madison County's Player of the Year.

Senior Scott Vance and junior Scott Maynard split the quarterbacking duties as last year's quarterback David Plummer sat out with a knee injury.

As a team the Tribe kept the "Golden Football" by downing Madison Heights, 28-7.

Receiving post season honors for the Tribe were Kirtz, Todd Sauer and Bruce Johnson, who were named all-county. Junior defensive back Joe Frossard was named honorable mention all-county.

The Reserve football team under the direction of new head coach Rick Muir suffered through a long 2-6 season and the freshmen suffered even more as they compiled a dismal 0-7 slate.

Muir's Reserve squad played all year without the likes of sophomores Rick Jones, Gary Vance and Andy Orbick, who were all used on the Varsity.

Jones and Vance were starters on the Varsity as Orbick saw some action on defense late in the year.

Without the use of these talented youngsters the reserves had to look to a freshman for the quarterback position. Frehman David Moore ran the offense along with Scott Reed and Reid Anderson in the backfield.

About halfway through the year it looked as though the reserves were going to be able to salvage a winning season after back-to-back wins over Muncie Central and South.

But that was not to be as they resorted back to their old ways in the last three games losing to Marion, Kokomo and Richmond.

Iunior Jeff Taylor, an interior lineman and line backer, was named Most Valuable Player at the end of the season at the football banquet.

As with the reserves the freshmen lost their better players to the next higher level.

Freshman Jay Jackson, Greg Grenda and David Moore all split time on the reserve team, while Bennie Chambers was with the reserves all year long.

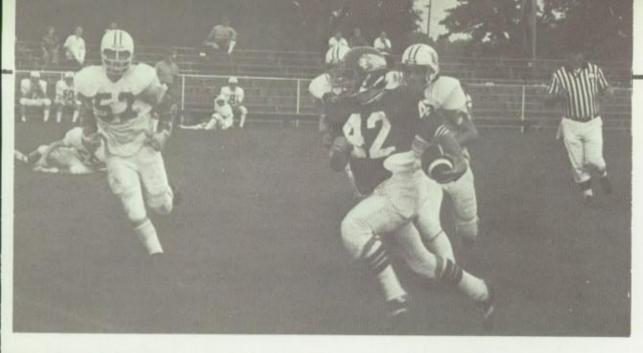

Greg Kimbrell was named the freshman outstanding player.

Poore Tops Team

The boys' gymnastics team had a moderately successful season. The team had two returning letter-winners from last year, Mark Howenstine and Greg Poore. At the end of their season, the team was ranked 7th in the state. Two gymnasts qualified individually for the state meet. Mike Bish, a sophomore, qualified in the horizontal bar and Greg Poore, a senior, qualified in all- around and horizontal bar. Coach Smith has high hopes for this team next year since there will be only two seniors graduating this year. The team finished the season with a record of 8-4.

The girls' gymnastics team did well this season also. They had four returning letter-winners, Betsy Barber, Linda Dennis, Jane Peck and Brenda Schmedding. These four girls will be the ony graduating seniors from the team. New coach Janice Turner led the girls to a 2-7 intermediate and 5-4 offensive season.

Golfers 2 in State

This year the girl's golf team enjoyed another successful season. They took second place in sectional and first in regional, and, for the third year in a row, they had to settle for a second place finish in the state meet.

With the help of four returning letterwomen, Dawn Carraway, Pam Closser, Julie Frier, and Louise Mudd, the golfers were also victorious in bringing home the NCC title from Richmond. They also captured a first at the Jefferson Invitational.

Coach Clark said that, even though she would have liked to have won the state, she is pleased with the team's record of 11-2-1.

The cross-country team enjoyed a winning season by ending up with a record of 6-4. Second year Coach Garry Courter explains, "I sat down with the guys at the beginning of the season, and we set many goals. We accomplished all of these by the end of our season due to the great effort put out by the team."

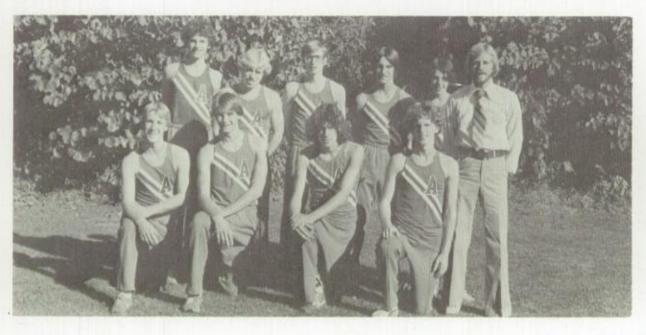

The Tribe, behind a second place finish by junior Brad Jones, placed third in the NCC. The team finished third in the sectional ahead of crosstown rivals Madison Heights and Highland. The fourth and ninth place finishes by Jones and junior Cam Gongwer, respectively, led the team through the sectional and qualified it for a long-awaited trip to the regional. This was one of their goals at the outset of the season. At the regional, the Tribe placed 12th as lones placed third individually, breaking an AHS record in the process. He finished at a time of 12:22, eight seconds better than Dwayne Allen's 1973 record of 12:30. Jones qualified for the state where he placed 12th. Jones was named to the All-NCC and All-State teams and received the Ray Fleenor Award. Kevin Wood and Scott Funk served as co-captains for the team.

Seniors Pat Skaggs and Bret Campbell, the only returning letterman from last year's sectional champs, guided the tennis team to a 9-9 season record. "I felt we had a solid group of seniors who always gave 100% throughout the entire season," commented Coach Charles Newberry.

The lineup was switched midway through the season but proved not to be enough as the Tribe was downed by a strong Highland team 4-1 in the sectional. The only win came from the first doubles team of Brad Mc-Kean and Alan Miller. "Overall I am satisfied with the outcome of our season. You can't complain about finishing .500," said Newberry.

By completing the season with a personal record of 11-6, Brad McKean was awarded the Coach's Award. The Anderson Tennis Club Award was received by Pat Skaggs and the Sportsmanship Award went to Alan Miller. Pat Skaggs was named to the All-NCC team, and Bret Campbell received honorable mention. Campbell also served as team captain.

The wrestling team ended their dual meet season with a record of 7-6, with five of those six losses being by only six points or less. The team was led by Donald Archey and Tony Skinner who ended with overall records of 21-3-1 and 19-2, respectively.

In the Sectional Archey and Skinner, along with Gary Agnew and Greg Hulse, were individual champions in their weight classes as the team placed 3rd overall. The Tribe had a disappointing regional where they finished 8th behind the second place finish of Archey and the third place finishes of Skinner and Kevin Francis. Archey, being the only one to qualify for the semi-state, traveled to North Central where he lost his first round match.

The team placed second in the Madison County Tournament with Archey, Hulse, Tony Levi, Tony Skinner, and Ray Skinner winning their weight class titles. In the NCC the grapplers placed 5th with the two Skinners being the only champions in their weight classes. Tony Skinner had the distinction of being the only person on the team to win all three - the sectional, NCC, and Madison County - title crowns.

Coach Ihnat stated, "I am very optimistic of next year's team with seven letter-winners coming back. I feel that they have gained valuable experience this year."

Cheerleaders Believe

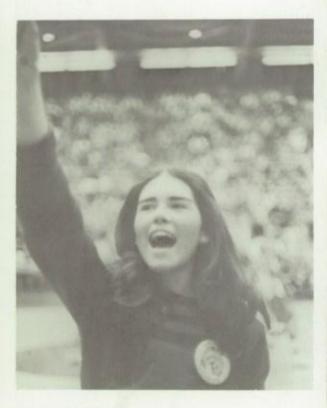

"We believe! We believe!" This was the spirited cry of excited Indian fans throughout the season as they sparked the team to a victory filled season.

Although there was no organized cheerblock this year, the student body did its share of yelling for the Indians. With help from the cheerleaders the students have made the absence of the cheerblock virtually unnoticed.

The cheerleaders, six freshmen, six reserve and six varsity, were all chosen last spring by a panel of students and teachers. Each girl had to do "Give me an I" and then a cheer of her choice.

The varsity cheerleaders attended a National Cheerleading camp at St. Mary's College last June. The reserve cheerleaders also attended a National Cheerleaders Association camp at Vincennes.

During the year the cheerleaders sold candy and attended a dance-athon for muscular dystrophy. During football season they threw miniature footballs to the crowd. All in all, this year proved to be a successful one for the cheerleaders and fans alike.

This year there was quite a change in the usual AHS manner of leading its team to victory. Besides the usual cheerleaders at games, there was a new addition to the squad. Six new "cheerleaders" were added to help boost the spirits of the fans. These new yell leaders were A-Club members who, in order to get the students "fired up" and introduce something new to the spirit scene, were asked to join the girl cheerleaders. They did such cheers as, "Give me an I" (with the help of constructive body language), and "Going to the top".

These were not the only people who sparked on the Indians, however. Mascot Jay Hornocker and Maiden Lisa Robinson also helped to add life to the Indians with the traditional war dance performed before each basketball game. They were also the instigators of many circlings of the Wigwam, complete with war whoops and tomahawks.

Another group involved in inspiring the Tribe is the A-Club. They spurred on the team all year and held ropes at games and pep sessions.

Behind the Scenes

The time has finally come to recognize the people who make athletics possible at Anderson High School.

These aren't the athletes themselves, but the all-important people behind the scenes. Without these people, nothing in the way of athletics could take place at AHS.

When you talk AHS sports, you are talking Bob Belangee. Belangee bleeds red and green. In a week it is not odd for him to spend 80-90 hours in the Wigwam, and that is not all desk work.

Belangee does the laundry, paints, sweeps and does any other chore that needs to be done. He also handles all of the scheduling for every sport.

Next in the work line is ticket manager Jack Macy. Macy handles and distributes tickets for all AHS sports and the area schools during basketball and sectional and regional.

Mr. Wendell Hilligoss is also in line for a pat on the back. He drives the Indian football and basketball teams to all of their road games, both varsity and reserve.

Wayne Rensler also is an integral part of the AHS sports machine. Rensler handles all of the equipment for all 17 sports at AHS. Rensler, who teaches at Forrest Hills, will spend 12 hours a day in the Wigwam during basketball season and just as much during football at Denny Field.

Pete Danforth, Larry Rittenhouse, Don Granger and Denny Montgomery all aid the AHS program.

Danforth, Granger and Rittenhouse handle the books and the scoreboard during the home basketball games, while Montgomery handles the public address system. Doug Zook, John Rigsby and Ron Crouse are the Indian managers.

The Wigwam janitorial staff handle the entire gym plus Denny Field in the spring and fall. Clean-up of the gym during basketball season is a time-consuming job, requiring extra hours of work.

Above: Ticket manager Jack Macy distributes basketball tickets to his wife. During the basketball season Macy usually spends about 10 hours a day in his Wigwam office.

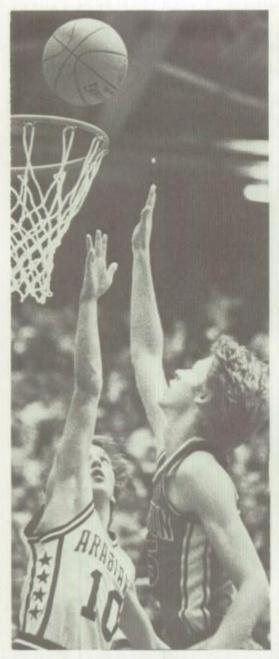

Above: Pete Danforth, shown here working out in the weightroom, has been running the clock for both the reserve and varsity basketball games for the last several years.

Dotson was a three year letterman for the Tribe.

Sportsters Excell

For the second straight year the Indian sports staff would like to recognize those athletes who excelled state-wide in their respective sport.

Starting off with fall sports, Anderson High was well represented by the football team as center Todd Sauer was named first team All-State by United Press International. Senior halfback Lyle Kirtz was named to the first team all-North Central Conference team after leading the conference in rushing.

Junior Brad Jones continued his dominance over central Indiana runners as he placed first in all of the Tribe's dual meets. Jones also set a new school record for the 21/2 mile cross country course.

Although the Indian girls golf team had to settle for second in the state, three seniors led the way for them all year. They were Dawn Carraway, Julie Frier and Pam Closser.

Jay Hornocker ran as though fully recovered from the ankle injury of two year's back as he placed high in the a junior. 880 at the state meet.

If we were to pick a most improved award, it would have to go to Susan Shafer as she literally came from nowhere to land a singles spot on the girls' tennis team.

Shafer, who saw very little varsity action last season as a junior, grabbed the Madison County 18 and over singles championship.

Greg Smith led the swimmers to a fifth place team finish in the state as he set a new state record for the 100 backstroke himself. Susan Wulf played the same role on the girls' squad.

Gabrella Smith was a standout on the girls' track squad and Shawn Teague was named all county in basket-

Senior catcher David Plummer was named all-NCC catcher for the third straight year as he hit over .500 in the conference for the second straight year. Plummer also finished high in the area hitting race after winning it as Three year letterman Julie Dotson was a leader for the girls' volleyball squad as she was named to the all-NCC first team.

Senior Pat Skaggs came up with a bag full of honors as he was not only named to the all-NCC squad in basketball, but in tennis also.

Don Archey was the lone wrestler to advance as far as the semi-state the past year as the wrestling team had to settle for a third place finish in the sectional.

Jane Peck led the way for the girls' gymnastic team, and Greg Poore more than handled the gymnastics on his side of the coin.

Above left: Greg Smith poses for a picture right before the state meet for which Smith shaved his head (see (swimming spread) and took second in the 100 backstroke. In the preliminaries Smith set a new state record for the event, but he had to settle for second in the final. Middle left: Catcher David Plummer contemplates his next time at bat. Conference Calls

"Hello."

"Hi, Jeff. What're you doing tomorrow night?"

"I'm not sure yet, why?"

"Well, I thought we'd ask that new guy in our algebra class if he wants to go to the game with us."

"That sounds good to me. I don't really know him yet; maybe he wouldn't even want to go out with us."

"What's that supposed to mean?"

"Well, there are so many different kinds of people and he might be one who has different interests than we do. He might not even like to go to basketball games."

"You're right. Of course there are a lot of different people at AHS, but when you get 1,700 students together you're bound to have a variety of people."

'I know. Think of all the groups that people belong to. There are those who like sports, those who like to study, those who don't like to do anything, those who join every club . . ."

"I get the picture! Remember, AHS wouldn't be any fun if all of the people were alike."

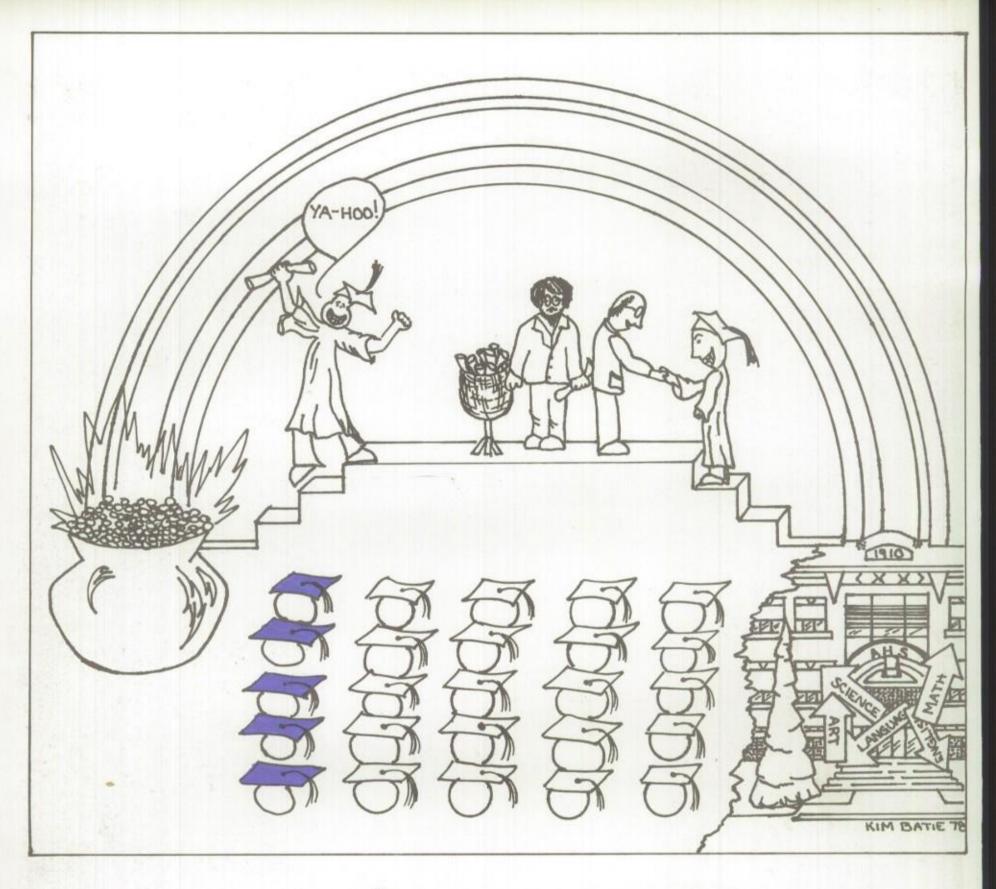

"That's for sure. Everyone at AHS has one thing in common, though. They're all Indians who know THE BEST THING IS BEING HERE."

It's About Time

To graduate, in The World Book, means to finish a course of study at a school, college, or university and receive a diploma. Another meaning is to change gradually.

Most of us are familiar with the first meaning of the word, graduate; but we must also consider the second significance of the word: to change gradually. Since it takes twelve long years to graduate, this meaning seems appropriate. But after talking with a few seniors, it seems graduation is anything but gradual.

Many Anderson High School seniors

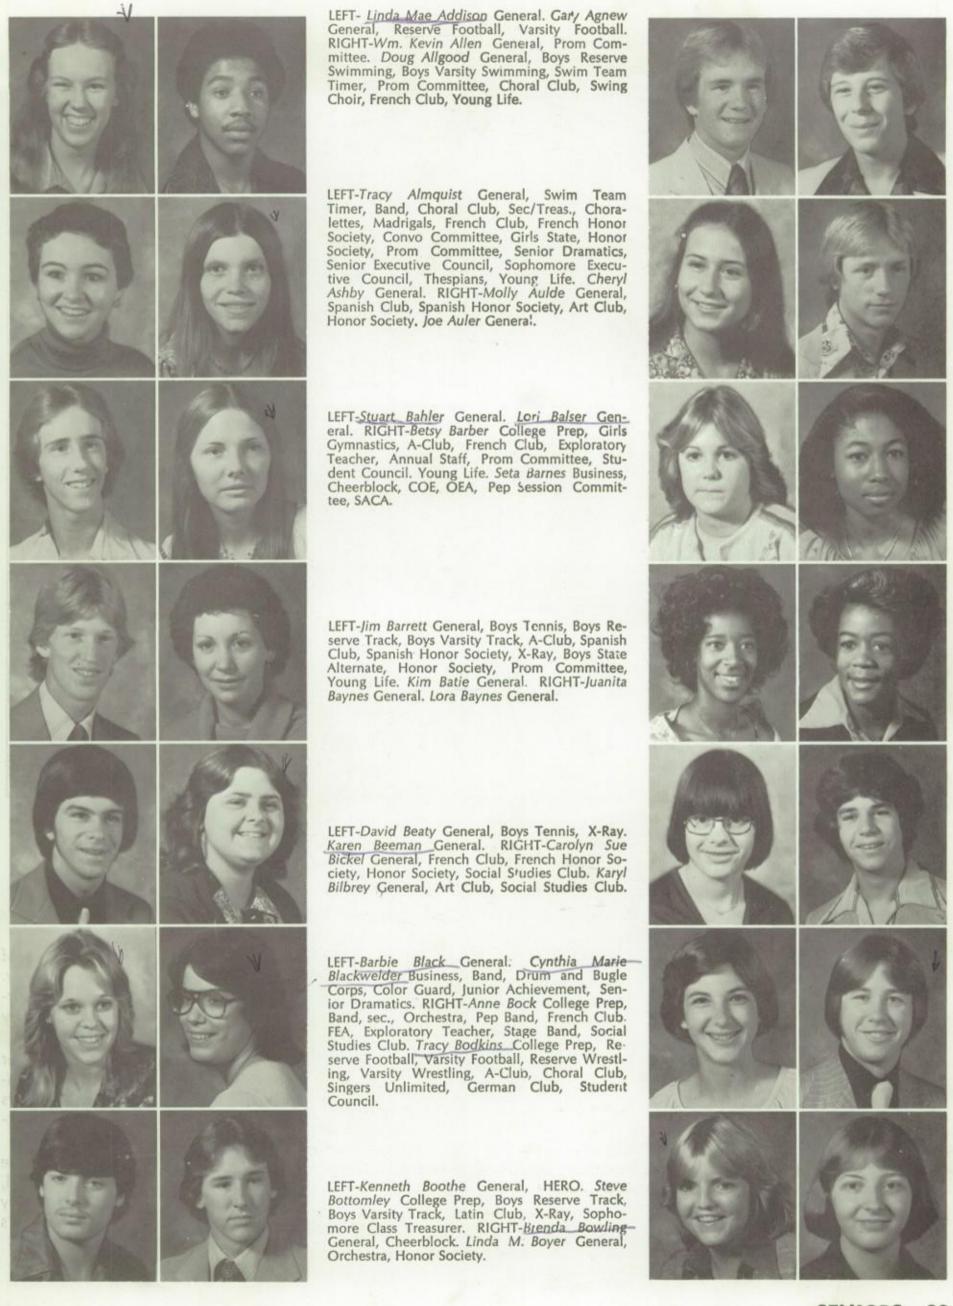

described their senior year as one that was "very hectic" and one that "went by too fast." But, of course, there were those who thought their senior year would never arrive and those who would be glad when it was all over.

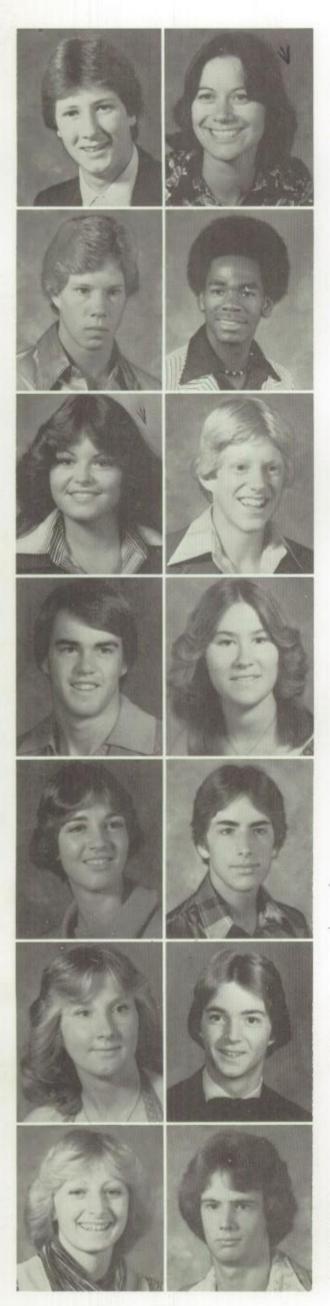

When asked about their plans after departing A.H.S., many seniors said they would be attending college, and others suprisingly answered they were planning on working and/or getting married.

Though the beginning of a new life at college or at work may have seemed a little scary to most seniors, they were partially adjusted to the idea of leaving home by the end of the year. Many had already decided how to furnish their college rooms and who they would room with at the dorms.

Some insisted that they would never return to Anderson except for Thanksgiving and Christmas, while others said they would be home every weekend, if not more often.

Although the class of '79 will be leaving many fond memories behind, one senior summed everything up by saying, "Graduation isn't the end, it's a whole new beginning."

As in previous years, the classes and activities of the senior class were a learning experience for two foreign exchange students sponsored by Youth for Understanding organization.

Pekka Salokangas came from Finland to live with Don Hensley and his family. Pekka took a year off from his school to see the United States and know its people. Pekka's activities at AHS included German club and running track.

Jean-Pierre Darmagnac, who lived with the Larry Muckenhein family, finished school in France before coming to the U.S. He also participated in extracurricular activities as a swim team and French Club member.

COMPETITION

Seniors Vie

For Honors

The class of 1979 was a competitive class. Out of a class of 402, the top 20's grade point average was 3.875 to a high of 4.184, on a grading scale where 4.0 was an A.

An honor held by only one senior was to be number one academically. Susan Wulf achieved valedictorian status by receiving high grades in both regular and honor classes which were worth extra points when figured on the overall average.

Carolyn Bickel and Elaine Kistner, two of the top 20, were also finalists in the 1979 National Merit Scholarship competition.

Before school began this year ten outstanding seniors, five girls and five boys, were chosen to spend one week at the Indiana State University campus, at Boys' and Girl's State where students learned about government.

Other seniors persued their interest on the math team, coached by Mr. Kendall Cox. The three original members of the team, Jim Barrett, Louise Mudd, and Bud Roby, were joined by a fourth member, Linda Dennis, at the beginning of the second semester.

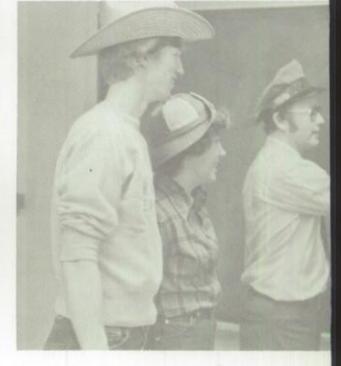

Dennis also added commencment speaker to her achievements as did Amanda Clark, Brenda Schmedding and Mike Emmerling. Kevin Wood was chosen as alternate.

Although one of the smallest classes to graduate from AHS in recent years, the class of 1979 excelled at AHS in academics, sports and were leaders of various clubs and organizations.

Only A Year To Go

For the second year in a row the class of 1980 captured the winning first place in the Homecoming float contest. The class' first place theme was "The Indians' Points Will Block A Wildcat Victory."

Junior students started their college board testing this year by taking the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test. Juniors were also allowed to take other tests throughout the year such as the SAT and the National Engineering Aptitude Test.

The junior class sponsored coat check to raise money for the prom. This was about the only way they had to earn money for the prom. Coat check took place at each basketball game with the junior class working at it.

Many arguments arose during the year, as last year on whether or not the junior-senior prom should be an open or closed dance.

Rob Pickett stated, "I feel prom should stay closed only to AHS juniors and seniors because it is a way the juniors say good-by to all of the seniors. and for seniors to look back on their years at AHS. It has been traditional."

Other students argued the point by saying that prom should be open to any AHS graduate and any junior or senior from a Madison County school. The reasons varied. All of the other Madison County schools' proms are open, why not ours? Many juniors and seniors dated boys and girls from other schools and many dated graduates from AHS, but as usual, Prom stayed closed.

Getting It Together

Most upperclassmen felt sophomores didn't do anything during their sophomore year of high school. This year they were proven wrong. Sophomores seemed to know what was going on since they had already been at AHS a year. They finally felt that they were a part of the school.

Sophomores were finally able to get into the routine of dating with over half of the sophomore girls dating older guys. Sophomore boys seemed to be dating older girls.

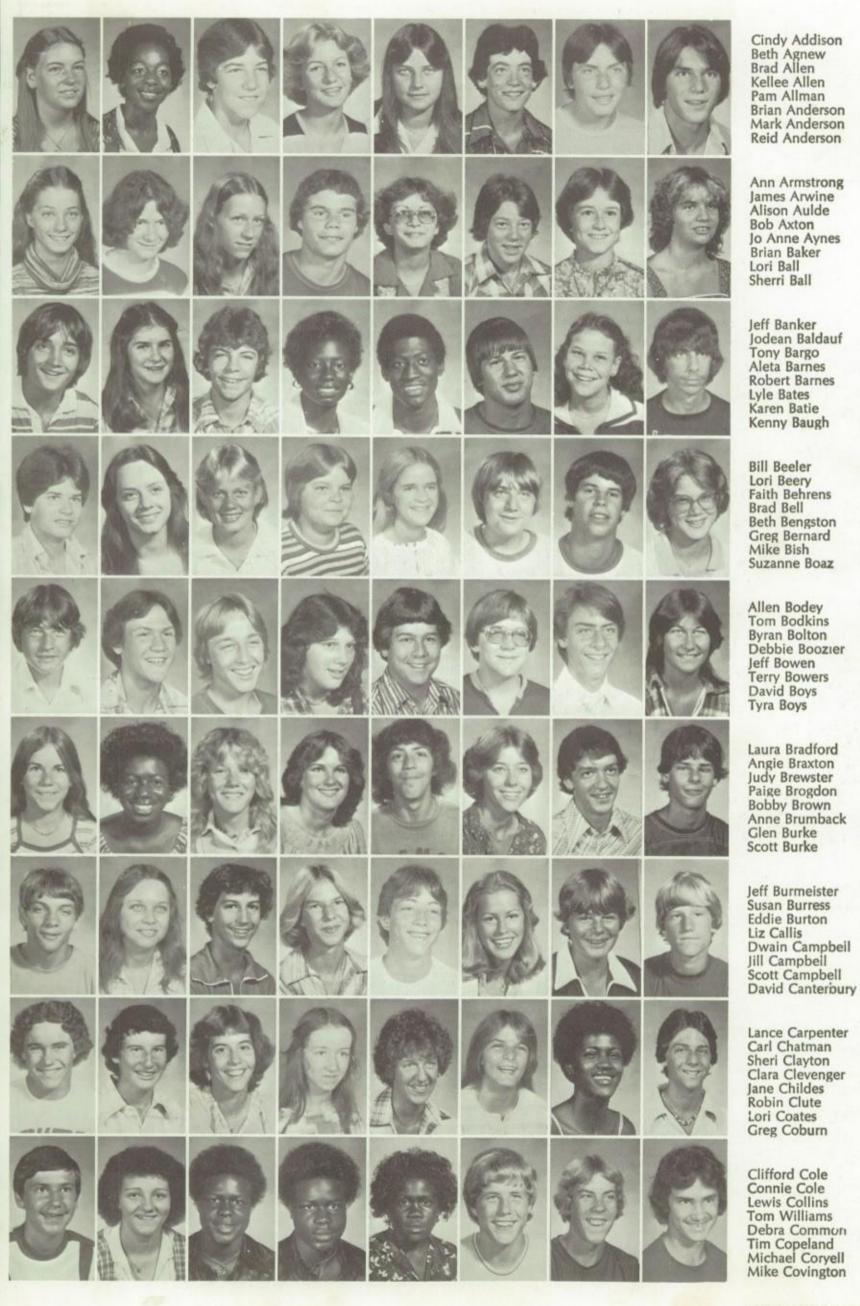

Cindy Hofer stated, "As a sophomore, there isn't that much to get involved in, but what activities there were, I got involved in them."

Many students were involved in sports, although a few sophomores were fortunate to be on the varsity teams. Andy Orbik, a varsity football player, commented, "I was much more involved as a sophomore than as a freshman because I ran track and played football."

The sophomore class had 434 members. They were a very noisy group. This may have accounted for the class being so rowdy and loud at the pep sessions.

After participating in the home-coming parade and with the winning homecoming queen, Dana Johnson, the class was really fired up. This was the first time a sophomore had ever won the title of homecoming queen in the history of AHS.

At the end of the year the sophomore executive council was allowed to clean up after the junior-senior prom. Sophomores were also allowed to serve refreshments during prom. Girls who participated in this activity had outfits that went along with the theme of the prom.

Cliques: Defined

"I was driving by the high school the other day, and I couldn't believe what I saw! There were all these little kids out in front with cigaretes hanging out of their mouths. How disgusting!" "Did you see that '79 Trans Am in the parking lot? I wonder who owns it." "I'm sick of seeing all my students show up for my class in blue jeans. Why can't they wear something else?" The comments were varied, but the attitudes were much the same in 1979 as nearly all the students in AHS let themselves become identified with at least one of the social groups. Of course, the most reknown of these groups were the "Jets" and the "Hoods", but the exact number of social groups at AHS has yet to be determined.

Though neither of the predominant social groups bothered to purchase club T-shirts telling which group they were a member of, it was pretty obvious which group people associated themselves with by the way they spoke, who they chose to eat lunch with, the degree of the vulgarity with which they expressed themselves, and what type of car they drove.

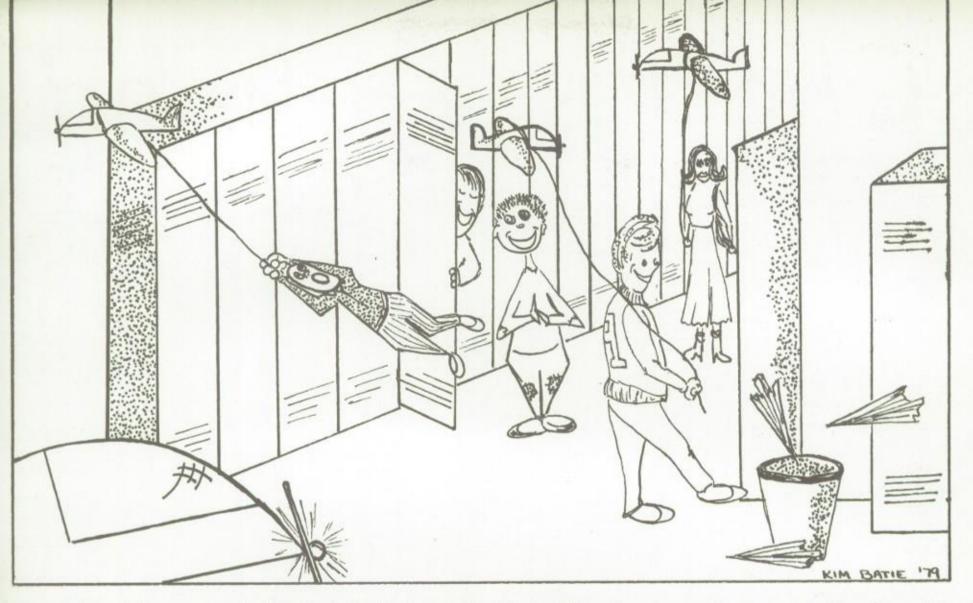

SCHOLAR: This group does not include the typical scholars. Instead, membership is extended to those who can carry at least six books and one dozen assorted notebooks and writing instruments in one hand. The nature of this group is to spend at least one half of their free time in the library. Requirements include a dazed look, a studious appearance and the ability to discuss matters foreign to the rest of society.

HOODLUMS: This name is applied to those students who choose to spend their time near green lines. The nature of this group is to fraternize in or near the 14th Street parking lot. Hoodlums, or hoods for short, can be found near un-mufflered, jacked-up, beat up cars with very loud stereos. The main requirements for membership into this social group are: a) jean jacket b) smoker's cough c) the ability to break windows with a single rock throw d) general apathy toward school and dislike of teachers and e) the ability to smoke a cigarette while retaining a degree of cool. This group welcomes new members daily near the green lines.

JETS: Members of this group can be located near 1979 cars in the John Street parking lot. They never eat at school, never run to class, never show extremes in emotion and never, but never, lose their cool. This group finds it fashionable to roam the halls at all times, to snicker in the presence of all other groups and to stand on the fringes of BIG trouble. Members are well-informed of the latest gossip, test answers, party locations, alcohol buyers' numbers and dope pushers' locations. Pre-requisites for membership are fashionable cars, clothes permissive parents, eternal cool and a ZIP code of 46011, which can be mumbled at just the right moment.

JOCK: Moving away from green lines and into the hallways, we find the ever-popular JOCK. Members of this group are normally males and can be distinguished from regular athletes by their walk. The walk conveys the idea that the jock's pants are much too tight or that the jock-in-question is trying to impress someone, usually a female. Members of the JOCK category are most easily found in the lunchroom sitting on the bleachers talking sports or eating the Type A lunch. Membership requires a generally boastful nature and/or a prominent backside. Then there is the "OH MY HAIR, OH, MY CLOTHES, I'M SO FAT" GROUP: This group consists of females. Members of this group are usually found in or near the girls' restrooms. Their favorite lines are, of course, "Oh, my hair!" (usually uttered by those with gorgeously thick, perfectly styled hair), "Oh my clothes!" (spoken by those who never wear the same thing twice and have a closet like Paul Harris), and "I'm so fat!" (the favorite line of girls who could compete with Twiggy for skinniest body). Membership requires theatrical paranoia and the ability to fish for compliments.

Frosh Join AHS

Adjusting to regulations and freedoms at AHS, the freshmen finally began to get involved in extracurricular activities. According to some of the freshmen, entering AHS was for the better. Todd Richardson stated, "I like picking classes that I enjoy."

Choosing class rings, participating in class activities such as making floats for homecoming, initiations for club and picking class officers to represent them in student council were what freshmen had to get accustomed.

According to Richardson, "The teachers are not as strict as the one's in junior high school." The first full day they lost class schedules, were late for class and had locker combination hassels.

Many freshmen attended AHS sports events. Mike Cowger commented on the pregame show, "I really think it's great, and it really fires you up." Open lunch hour is a new concept for many of the freshmen. Since they are not old enough to drive and can't find a ride, they are found in the cafeteria or at McDonald's.

Although they enjoy the school dances, they regret not being able to go to Prom.

The hustle and bustle of crowded halls . . . homeroom meeting. . . .worth-while and entertaining convos. . .formal dances. . .lunch hour. . .sessions in the dean's office. . .aching feet and tired. . .cramming for exams. . .pep sessions. . .parties. . .rap sessions on the front steps. . .Indian athletic events . . .dissecting frogs in biology. . .attending plays. . .note taking. . .lectures. . . Career Day. . .Guidance Day. As Usual the freshmen survived their first year of high school, and they soon began to become more mature and were on their way to becoming INDIANS!

Saundra H. Amos

On January 24, 1979, Anderson High School lost its second of two faculty members when Mrs. Saundra Amos died of natural causes.

Mrs. Amos joined the Anderson City Schools System in 1964 when she began teaching at Central Junior High School. In 1960 Mrs. Amos came to Anderson High School where she joined the English department. She first taught remedial reading and later taught sophomore English.

Mrs. Amos' main responsibility at AHS was the Indianettes whom she sponsored and choreographed for 11 years. Over these 11 years she directed the Indianettes in over 55 contests and approximately ten half-time shows per year.

In 1960 Mrs. Amos graduated from Anderson High School. In her senior year Mrs. Amos, then Miss Heard, was head Indianette. Mrs. Amos attended Purdue University where she received her Bachelor's degree and Ball State University where she received her Masters degree.

In Memory of

Nevin L. Buhrman

On January 3, 1979 Nevin Lynn Buhrman at age of 22 was returning to his home in Anderson when he was killed in a car accident.

Mr. Buhrman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Buhrman of Wolfsville, Maryland, had just left his parents' home when his car left the road for an unknown cause and struck a tree.

Mr. Buhrman had graduated from Anderson College summa cum laude in 1978 and was awarded the Bachelor of Arts Degree in Education. While at Anderson College, he taught teenage classes at his church.

Mr. Buhrman student taught at AHS with Mr. Jerry Porter and the two became quite close. This last year Mr. Buhrman joined the faculty of AHS where he was very well liked.

Above right: Assistant Superintendent of Special Services Leonard Austin heads the Area Vocational School and Special Education. Below right: Dr. Harold Gallagher as Superintendent of Anderson Harold Gallagher as Superintendent of Anderson Community Schools is the chief executive of area schools and is directly responsible to the school board.

To get the most out of Anderson High School, students should get involved in extracurricular activities. After graduation, a student can look back at the fun they have had and realize that they have made a contribution to Anderson High School as well.

ACS Gets Grant

This year state and federal laws regarding the education of the mentally handicapped were put into effect. This law provided that within every school's faculty, there will be at least one member who is trained to identify and test students with learning problems. It also required that facilities and instructors will be provided for these students to enable them to overcome or adjust to these handicaps. Once they have completed this program successfully, these students are able to continue their education much easier and better. This program involves those students who have the learning ability, but whose learning process is slowed by some type of impediment.

The Anderson Community Schools received a $10,000 federal grant for the installation of this program. Last summer this grant funded work-shops for the training of twenty-three teachers for the identification and care of the mentally handicapped. This grant also funded the establishment of testing labs. These labs consisted of a team of psychologists and one psychoanalyst. The rest of this grant was used in the actual installation of the program in each school. This installation began in the first grade. Once it was fully completed in this grade, it moved to the second grade. The installation of this program moved from grade to grade as long as the funds lasted. Once this program was installed, the trained teachers would counsel any student having learning problems. The counseling sessions last all day with the purpose of pinpointing the student's problem. When the problem is identified and a solution is found, the student's learning and study program is then adjusted for the solution with parental consent. After this is done, the student continues his education as does any other student.

"HappyMary'sDay!"

"Happy Mary's Day" was the theme on November 5, the official holiday to celebrate the birthday of Mrs. Mary Kitterman, a counselor at Anderson High School, who retired at the end of the year. To express their gratitude for her years at AHS, the faculty dedicated a day of fun and merriment to their "Mary". The celebration included buttons, cake, presents, of course, and a serenade from a choir of men teachers.

Mrs. Kitterman earned this special honor after working many years. She has worked for the Anderson Community Schools System for the past 44 years. She began her teaching career at the Main Street site. She then taught at Central and had been at AHS since 1945. She has in her past 22 years of counseling developed quite a reputation for finding scholarships and financial aid for her students.

Mrs. Kitterman provided her fellow teachers with happiness, too, with her thoughtful gifts and her friendly smile.

"Hello."

"Hi, have you heard the latest news?"

"No, what happened?"

"The roof of the Riveria Theater downtown just collapsed!"

"You're kidding! Was anybody hurt?"

"They're not sure yet because they're still trying to clear all of the people out."

"That's scary! Gosh, we just had that big fire downtown last week and now this happens. Of course, the fire got out of hand since our firemen were on strike and wouldn't come put out the blaze. It seems like so many awful things are happening in Anderson right now."

papers, but there are a lot of good things happening, too. Mounds Mall just finished remodeling most of their stores and they've really got a whole new look."

"I know. The Mall looks so much better now. Lloyd's Landing has opened up a whole new building now for more shops, too."

"The construction of the 109 Bypass is finally nearing completion, and the bridge that connects the downtown area with Park Place is finished and open for traffic."

"I guess there are good things happening in Anderson, you just don't seem to hear about them."

"Even during the fire good things were happening. Firemen from surrounding towns came to help us during the big fire, and everyone did what they could to help those businesses whose buildings burned."

"You're right. Although some bad things are bound to happen in any town, the people of Anderson always make the best of things because they know THE BEST THING IS BEING HERE."

Hoosier Hysteria

A disease known as Hoosier Hysteria strikes Indiana every year during the basketball season. This year at AHS an epidemic of Hoosier Hysteria began as the Indians won the sectional, regional and semi-state before losing to Muncie Central in the final game of the state tournament.

As the Indian basketball team entered the Wigwam on the Sunday afternoon following the state, 3,000 fans greeted them with cheers and applause. Technically the team was number two, but the fans told them that they were still number one in the eyes of the Indian backers.

Cars were decorated with stickers proclaiming "You are following an Indian backer" and "We believe in our Indians." Streamers trailed from radio antennas and horns were honked to draw attention to the red and green.

While some fans wore t-shirts and buttons to show that they were Indian fans, others went to the extremes. Brian Miller, alias "The Hulk," covered his body with green-colored cream and wore a red suit. He did cheers in a language that most people found difficult to understand, but the Indian fans knew that he was saying "We Believe!" Jerry Gray, AHS junior, also showed his spirit in a unique manner as he shaved his head — except for the hair growing in the shape of an "A."

Coach Held was also a victim of the Hoosier Hysteria disease as he was seen doing cartwheels at pep sessions after arriving on the back of Mr. Pate's motorcycle. Held told the fans that in order to be a true Indian they had to bleed red and green. One fan showed his desire to be an Indian, undergoing a blood transfusion from a bottle filled with red and green "blood."

Hoosier Hysteria, unlike other diseases, was an illness that people enjoyed having. The symptoms were varied and anything strange that Indian fans did as the Indians kept winning was attributed to Hoosier Hysteria.

green. Above: Even the kids get into the Indian spirit as three-year-old Myron Marsh proves to Mascot Jay Hornocker. Local grammar school students also attended pep sessions.

Below: Junior Jerry Gray shows off his shaved "A." As one of the more spirited Indian fans, Jerry also painted himself red and green for the tourney games. Above: Bret Campbell and Shawn Teague hold up the hard earned runnerup trophy. Although the tearn was disappointed with the loss, Indian fans showed how proud they were at a pep rally the next day. Below:

Evansville, Indiana, due to the rain is a reminder of the damage that the weather has done to the roads. Above Right: Snow covered highways posed a problem this year as snowdrifts and ice made traveling difficult.

Long Distance Calls

Peace talks between Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat initiated by U.S. President Jimmy Carter were in the headlines on and off throughout the year. They signed a peace treaty in March. While the talks were going on there were other things happening which had been overshadowed by the on-going negotiations between Israel and Egypt.

In Jonestown, Guyana, the religious cult led by Reverend Jim Jones was in the news when 900 of its members committed suicide. They drank a red, fruit-flavored drink as Reverend Jones ordered them. The liquid also contained cyanide, a poison which was found to be the cause of their death.

Death was the topic of news for the Catholic church as well as two popes passed away this year. Pope Paul IV was succeeded by Pope John Paul I after his death. Pope John Paul I served for 34 days before dying. His successor took the name of John Paul II.

Gas prices continued to rise this year, approaching the dollar-per-gallon mark very quickly. Travel by car was cut down as the gasoline price increases were felt in the pocketbooks across the U.S.

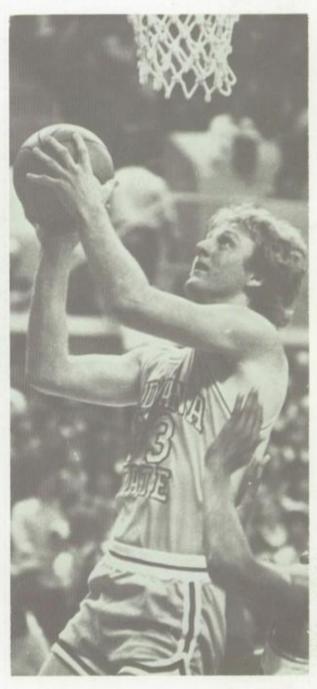

The sports world had a little better news than the rest of the world. The New York Yankees defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers for the World Series title. In college basketball, Indiana State University surprised all of the big universities and finished their regular season undefeated. They remained unbeaten until the final game of the NCAA championship when they were beaten by Michigan State. Larry Bird of ISU was the nation's leading scorer. The Super Bowl title was given to the Pittsburg Steelers after they defeated the Dallas Cowboys.

Extending AHS

Ever since freshmen joined the student body of AHS in 1976, the hallways have been overcrowded. Some classrooms were too small to accommodate the number of students assigned to them and some departments were deficient in the areas needed to give students room to complete assignments and projects.

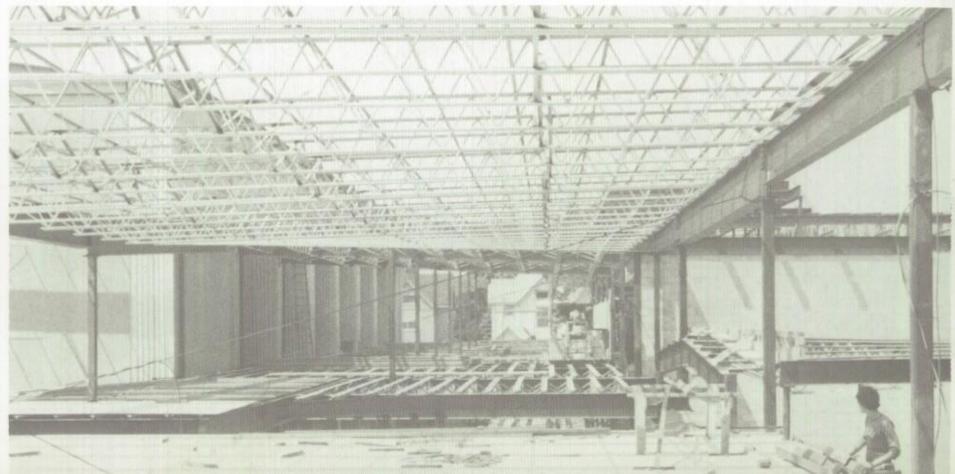

The addition being built on to the present building at AHS is being constructed to solve these problems and connect the main building to the gym.

The addition will contain an auditorium, a science department, the choral department and some additional space being added to the present cafeteria. Construction is expected to be completed by the beginning of the 1979-80 school year.

Renovation of the present building is also taking place. The former choral department became the art department, and the English department moved into the old art rooms. The old auditorium was turned into the library and the counseling offices now occupy the former library. Construction is still underway on the second floor where the dean's offices will take the place of classrooms previously used for the English classes. Fire doors are also being added at the ends of hallways.

Right: Part of the tiled Indian on the side of the Wigwam is being covered as the addition takes shape. Below: A workman works on the frame of the addition being built at AHS.

Left: A construction worker climbs on a ladder to work on the fire doors being put up at the end of the hallways. Above: Students push their way through the finished fire doors on the third floor as they hurry to their classes. Below: Sky is still showing through the framework of the new addition, but the sun will never shine through these windows anymore as many were boarded shut as the construction progressed.

ARecording

"Hello."

"Hi, what're you doing"

"I just got back from looking for a job for this summer. Now that school's almost over I've got to find a way to earn money this summer."

"I'm just going to take it easy this summer; it'll take all summer to catch up on the sleep I missed this year."

"I know what you mean. We sure kept busy this year, but that's the best part of going to school."

"Really. We had some of the best sports teams this year. The basketball team was so super and the swimmers won their third straight NCC title."

"History was made when Dana Johnson was elected homecoming queen, the first sophomore ever."

"I bet that was exciting for her. That night was so much fun, even though it was pouring down rain."

"Now it looks like the addition will finally be finished. We moved the chemistry lab supplies into the new room last week."

"So many things have moved into their new rooms. The art department moved downstairs and the old art rooms became English classrooms."

"Yes, and the counseling office moved to the second floor."

"I know. Boy a lot of things have happened. Indian spirit was revived; people were so enthusiastic. We sure showed it this year when our spirit chains were the longest in Indian history. Remember when Brian Miller came to the basketball game dressed as the Incredible Hulk? He really showed his spirit!"

"That was great! It's kind of sad to see this year end. I can't believe graduation is tomorrow."

"I'm ready though. With finals and this construction mess, it seemed like graduation would never get here."

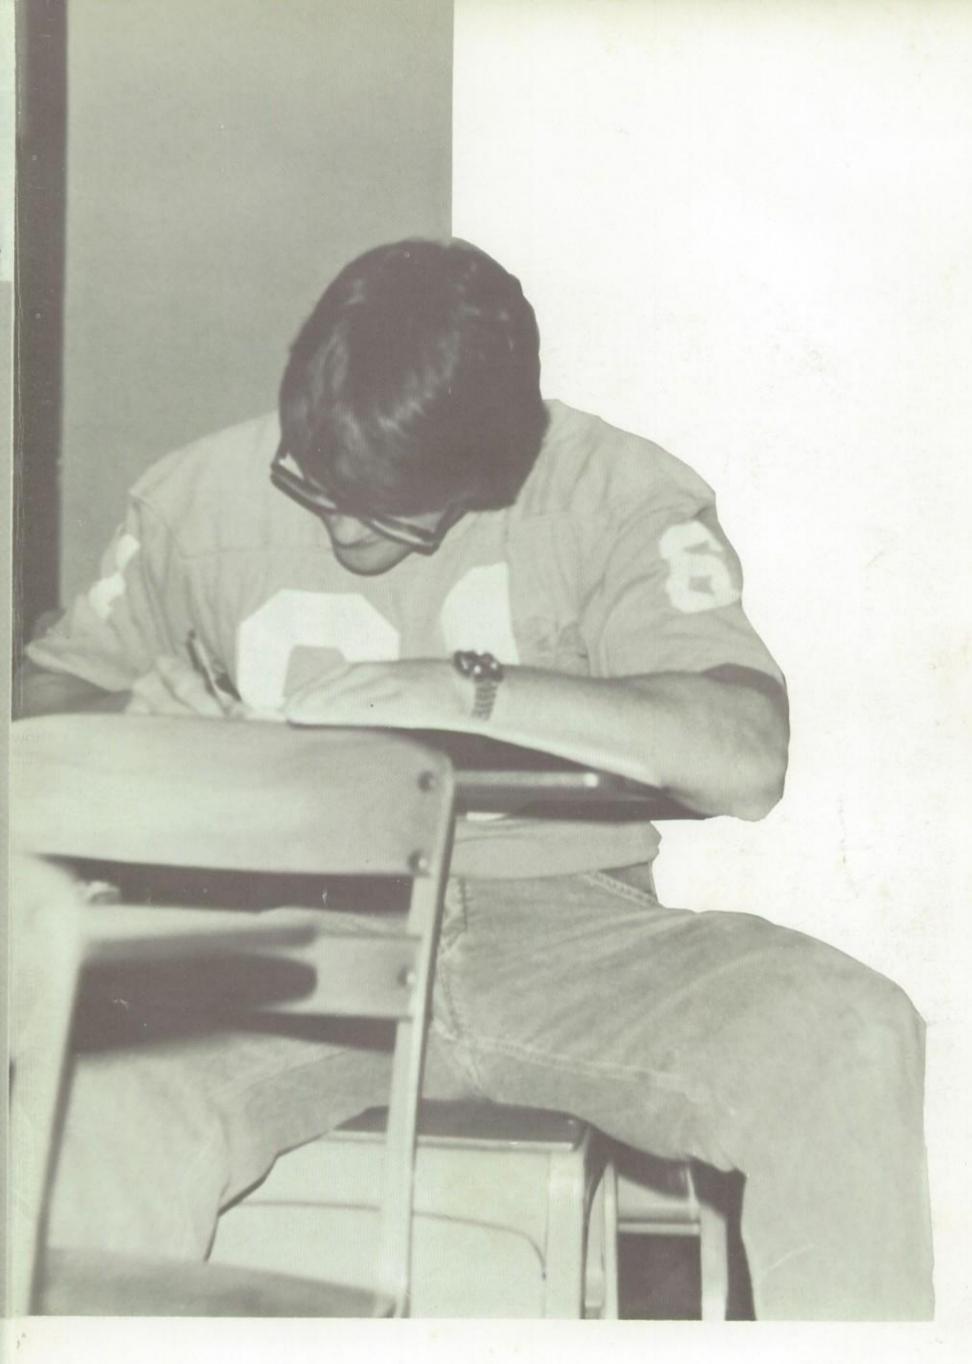

"But it's finally here, and in spite of all that we put up with this year, the good outweighs the bad and I know THE BEST THING WAS BEING HERE."

Above: As the school day ends, students board the buses to head for home. Many students who had cars headed for the parking lot when the final bell sounded. The buses were available for those who needed them. Right: Mr. Ross Buckman locks his room as he prepares to leave for the evening. Far Right: Todd Sauer take a make-up test in his honor chemistry class. Tests were often made up after the regular school hours when everyone else had left.
